118 Graduate From Kingston Grade Schools

Commencement Exercises Held Friday at Kingston High School—Program was very Pleasing—Dr. Michael Presents Diplomas to Large Class.

The forty-fourth Commencement Exercises of the Kingston Grammar Schools was held at the Kingston High School on Friday afternoon at 2:15 o'clock. A very large class was graduated, numbering 118 students.

Even though it was mid winter, and very cold at that, the stage was almost as pretty with its many baskets of flowers tied with gay ribbons as though it were the June Commencement season. Music was furnished by the Grade Schools Orchestra and Dr. Myron J. Michael played his own part as Superintendent of Schools and also officiated for H. H. Flemming, President of the Board of Education, who was unable to be present. The class was noticeable in that many of the graduates seemed more mature and perhaps better prepared to take up the High School work than has been the case in many previous classes.

After the playing of "The American Hymn," by Keller, by the Grade School Orchestra conducted by Musical Supervisor Leonard Stine, which received merited applause, Dr. Michael said that he had the disappointing news to announce that the first graduate on the program was too ill to be present, which was a matter of real disappointment both to Mary E. Brenn of School No. 2, who was to have given a recitation, "Everything Has a Model," and to those present.

The young people who took part in the program all spoke clearly and showed an excellent appreciation of the content of the recitations which they gave. School No. 2 was well represented by Rose Merle McLaughlin whose recitation was "The Best," by Nelson Robbins. Harold K. Darling from School No. 4 had as his recitation, "Makers of History," author unknown.

A very pleasing number on the program was the singing by the Girls' Glee Club of all of the Grade Schools of a Minuet "When Twilight Weaves," by Beethoven. The girls not only sang very sweetly and well but they sang from memory, making it possible for them the better to follow their conductor, and also sending out into the auditorium a fine quality of tone.

The next two recitations were "The Two Builders" by Viola B. Shepherd, given by Violet A. Flasbang of School No. 5 and "The Calf Path," by Foss, given by Everett J. Field of School No. 6.

Again the program was pleasantly varied by music, this time the Boys' Glee Club of the Grade Schools singing "By the Mississippi," by Davis and "Neapolitan Nights," by Zamecnik.

There were some lovely voices in this club and the boys sang well, but could have sung much better, had they, like the girls, memorized their songs so they could have watched their conductor.

Stephan A. Leacock's "Big Business," was the recitation given by George C. Groves of School No. 7, while the final recitation of the afternoon was "The Two Roads," of Jean Paul Richter, given by Thomas V. Miller of School No. 8.

Dr. Michael Presents Diplomas.

In the absence of President Flemming, Dr. Michael presented the diplomas, but before doing so he not only congratulated both parents and pupils on the accomplishment of graduation from the public schools of the city, but asked of the parents whose boys and girls should go to high school, that they give those boys and girls every opportunity, to do the best possible work—for it would be work and hard work to graduate from the high school—while attending the high school. Dr. Michael expressed the hope that all of the graduates about to receive their diplomas might be able to come back for their academic work, and warned them also that while it would be tremendously worth while, it would also be exceedingly strenuous. Today our boys and girls are tempted on every side by the auto, the flying machine, the movies, the radio to be careless about home study work which must be done, and Dr. Michael urged the boys and girls to do that necessary studying and then have all the fun they could. And be asked of them a loyalty to themselves and their school which should redound to the honor and credit of both.

The Graduates.

Judge Fowler Submits Two Questions to Jury

In Levitt Against Kreisig, Was Trade Acceptance Obtained In Good Faith?—Was a Fraud Perpetrated Upon Kreisig When He Signed Paper?

Two questions were presented to the jury by Judge Joseph M. Fowler in County Court Friday afternoon, in the case of Nathan M. Levitt of Brooklyn against Albert Kreisig, Kingston merchant located at the corner of Broadway and St. James street. The action arose out of a transaction in which the plaintiff asks payment on a trade acceptance made by the defendant, and the defendant alleges that the note was a misrepresentation for which he is not liable. The questions, in substance, for the jury to decide are: Did Levitt obtain the trade acceptance in good faith and for value and, second, was a fraud perpetrated against the defendant when he signed the paper? The court will decide the case after the jury has answered the questions.

The plaintiff in presenting his side of the case stated that he had purchased the paper on the advice of his attorney and that he had bought several such papers, all as a matter of business. The face value of the acceptance was $450 and the plaintiff paid $405 for it. The plaintiff further stated that he did not know the company from which he bought the paper, neither did he know the maker of the paper, the defendant.

The defendant alleged that he signed the paper but thought that it was a contract to store goods for the Adjustable Displays Company, who had asked him to store certain signs until the company's men could come to Kingston to make delivery. The deliveries were made and at that time the defendant alleges that he was informed that he would have to collect for the signs because he had signed a trade acceptance making him liable. He protested to the company, but received word, he said, that the paper had been sold to a third party and could not be returned.

The case was delivered to the jury Friday afternoon after it had received instructions concerning the points on which it was to pass. The jury will report to the court and the judge plans to base his decision upon the questions settled by the jury.

Fire In Pants Factory Friday

About 10:35 o'clock Friday evening the fire department received a call to a fire in the Shapiro & Ruben pants factory at the corner of Smith avenue and Grand street. The fire was discovered when the sprinkler system, with which the building is equipped, began to operate.

The fire department found the fire confined to the stock stored on benches on the first floor. The sprinkling system had worked so effectively that it was not necessary to stretch hose, and the firemen removed the burning stock from the building and extinguished the fire outside. The stock that was damaged consisted of pants and lumber jackets.

The damage to the building was trifling and the extent of the damage to the stock is not known. The officials of the company are busy taking inventory to ascertain the damage to the stock.

The origin of the fire is unknown.

Ulster's Gas Tax Receipts $74,814

For the Year 1929—How This Tax is Distributed Among the Counties on a Valuation and Mileage Basis.

Albany, Jan. 25.—The 57 counties of New York state outside of greater New York city will receive $1,400,983.13 as their share of the motor fuel tax in the latest distribution of moneys collected under that tax. Figures covering this distribution were given out here today by Thomas M. Lynch, commissioner of taxation and finance, and now show that in addition to the amount given the counties, there was distributed to the state the sum of $1,545,055.12 and to New York city $350,245.78 for a total of $3,296,285.03.

The sum sent the counties and to New York city represents 25 per cent of the tax collected during the three months ending December 31, 1929, while the amount for the state is 75 per cent of the money taken in during the month of December. The gasoline tax law provides that each month 75 per cent of the money collected be put in the general fund for the construction of highways and that the remaining 25 per cent be distributed every three months, one-fifth of this latter amount going to New York city for the general reduction of taxes and the remaining four-fifths to the other 57 counties of the state. The amount so as signed to each county is placed in the state aid fund of that county. This fund is made up of the motor fuel tax money, the amount raised by tax in each county for county road purposes, the contribution from the state under the Lowman act to match this amount raised and the motor vehicle revenues, and is to be used for construction of the secondary system of roads.

Distribution of the motor fuel tax moneys is made on the basis of the mileage of highways in each county that are not part of the state and county system. This total mileage in the state is 71,329, an increase of 1,223 miles over the totals shown on the state map at the last distribution, when 70,606 miles was the total. According to the official highway map, drawn following recent re-measurement of all roads in the state, total mileage decreases are shown in Chautauqua, Columbia, Dutchess, Franklin, Genesee, Hamilton, Herkimer, Livingston, Niagara, Oneida, Orange, Oswego, Schoharie, Schuyler, Suffolk, Sullivan, Tompkins, Ulster and Wyoming counties, while Lewis retains the same mileage as was shown on the map of December. All other counties show increased mileage with Nassau having the greatest increase, 359 miles. Under this new alignment Hamilton county now has the lowest mileage with 301 and Schenectady is next with 335 miles of unimproved roads. Steuben remains as the county showing the greatest miles of such highways.

The following table shows the mileage, the latest distribution, and the total distribution to date in Ulster and adjoining counties.

	Mileage	Tot. Amount Distributed	Total to date
Delaware	2,150	$41,934.51	$97,440.11
Dutchess	1,163	26,584.53	63,188.81
Greene	927	18,050.60	42,208.85
Orange	1,250	24,497.56	59,188.57
Sullivan	1,727	33,684.14	79,073.71
Ulster	1,617	31,928.74	74,814.07

Masked Robbers Hold Up Party

San Francisco, Jan. 25 (AP).—Search for two masked robbers who interrupted a party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. Campbell-Smith, wrested several thousand dollars worth of cash and jewelry from the hostess and eleven guests and escaped after binding and gagging their victims, was under way here today.

Police estimated the amount of loot at $25,000.

Before their departure, one of the robbers turned to one of the guests, Mrs. Alice Campbell of Piedmont, who has just given up a diamond and pearl platinum brooch, which she valued at $15,000, and remarked with a sneer:

"What a cheap outfit; just a dime-a-dozen crowd."

The robbers rang the Campbell-Smith doorbell during a party which included eleven friends of the hostess. A servant answered and was roughly brushed aside by one of the men while the other walked into a drawing room where Mrs. Campbell-Smith was dancing.

"Stick 'em up, everybody!" he ordered. "And don't hesitate."

He was joined a moment later by his smaller confederate, who lined the guests against a wall.

While the taller man menaced the crowd, the other searched each victim. Cash and jewelry were dropped into a tablecloth and one by one the guests were bound with tape the bandits brought with them.

Women were carried to bedrooms and dropped on the floors. Men guests were ordered to lie down and makie no noise. The pair then gathered up their loot, conversing in disparaging terms about the "cheap" haul. The smaller robber appeared nervous. He dropped his gun several times.

Ambulance Calls Here.

Friday the city ambulance removed George Deyo from the Salvation Army headquarters to the Kingston Hospital; Mrs. George North from 107 Gage street to the Benedictine Hospital and John Lane from 79 Prospect street to the Kingston Hospital.

Public Service Commission Will Fight New Rates

Albany, Jan. 25 (AP).—The state's fight on the increased telephone rates has taken form. Unable to stop the New York Telephone Company from charging more because of a federal court ruling authorizing it to increase its rates to secure a seven per cent return on its investment, the Public Service Commission announced its determination to fix a schedule of rates to allow just that.

The commission emphasized the federal court did not fix any rates, and that it (the commission) could not be stopped from setting a schedule so long as it assured the minimum rate authorized by the court.

Whether or not the increases announced by the telephone company to take effect February 1 will be allowed to stand depends upon the commission's finding as to what rate of yield they would bring the company.

The battle begins January 28, when the Public Service Commission has ordered a hearing on the merits of the rates, charges, tolls and rentals to be charged by the company. The order was signed by Commissioner George R. Lunn. The commission will fix the rates after this hearing is concluded.

At the same time, Governor Roosevelt, while still "marking time" awaiting the Public Service Commission's action, directed his counsel to secure for him a history of the case as it concerned the state government. The governor pointed out the increases announced would cost the state roughly $200,000 annually.

The law department of the state, under Attorney General Hamilton Ward, also was reported interested.

In answer to newspapermen's questions, Commissioner Lunn said the rates the company has announced were temporary rates.

Since the federal court voided the rates fixed by the commission in 1926, members of the commission have pointed out the company has no legal schedule of rates on file with the commission, the state's regulating body.

William A. Prendergast, the commission chairman, in a statement last night promised his body was "prepared to press its inquiry to the extreme limit of all the authority it possesses."

Extend Scout Drive to Monday

The workers of the Scout Drive reported Friday night at the Governor Clinton on their third day's work. Many asked to be excused from the meeting on account of the charity ball.

Chairman Hart asked for permission to extend the time for closing the campaign to Monday night, which move was approved by the workers. It was found that three days was too short a time for many of the workers to complete their solicitations. In spite of the incomplete reports from all the divisions and teams of the county, including Kingston, the total amount to date was found to be $8,147.50.

A number of people who were not approached by the workers, have sent in their checks, which proves to the council the merits of Scouting in Ulster county. The executive committee desires to invite anyone who should happen not to be solicited to send in their check.

Arthur Burns, who has been actively interested in the movement since its inception in the county, and who has been its treasurer for many years, feels it a compliment to the boys of the county because of the big force of men who have been so willing to cooperate to make the campaign a success which insures the carrying on of a larger and more effective program for the coming year.

Mr. Hart set a quota for each team which he hopes will be reached by Monday night and thus the desired amount will be obtained by that time. He felt with the spirit manifested on the part of the workers and the public's response, this could easily be done.

Every worker in the city and county is asked to aid in securing the remainder of the amount yet to be obtained.

FIRE IN ANN STREET HOUSE FRIDAY EVENING.

A fire in a basket of old rags under a sink in the hallway of the house at 52 Ann street, occupied by Mrs. Laura Delavan, about 7:30 o'clock Friday evening, caused an alarm to be turned in from Box 42, to which the fire department responded. The damage was slight. The house is owned by Mrs. Mary Larkin.

WILL OPEN STORE ON CENTRAL BROADWAY

A store to be known as the West Shore Department Store will be opened shortly in the building at 562 Broadway, formerly occupied by the Brier Rose Tea Room. The new store will handle a line of goods priced at 5 and 10 cents and up. The building, which was recently vacated by the tea room, is now being remodeled for the new business.

K. of C. Ball Great Success

Success crowned the Knights of Columbus Charity Ball, held Friday night at the armory which was visited by approximately 2,000 people who thoroughly enjoyed the evening's program put on in the appropriately decorated drill shed.

The doors of the armory opened at 7 o'clock, and soon after choice seats were at a premium. However, there were very few who did not get some sort of a comfortable vantage from which to view the entertainment because the floor committee pressed into service every seat available in the armory. The seating arrangement was excellent.

First on the program was an orchestral concert by John Erne's Imperial Broadcasters, who occupied a very artistically decorated booth on the left side of the armory. The local musicians played from 8 to 8:30 and their music was thoroughly appreciated by the ball patrons.

On the right side of the armory, in a booth the same as the one in which the Imperial Broadcasters were situated, was Sammy Wilson and his "Sweet Adelineers" who accompanied the performers with necessary music. Wilson, himself, who played a medley of new and old-time airs on the piano, proved himself an artist.

The entertainment program, booked through the Skea & Armstrong agency of New York, was the best ever presented in the armory, according to people well qualified to render the most intelligent criticism. The Three White Flashes, sensational roller skaters, in "Wheels of Chance," featured the bill. Their feats were highly appreciated.

Youri Yourlioff, Russian dancer; Ruth Linde of the New York Paramount Theatre in slow control dancing and Renee and Lora, America's only female adagio dancers of the Capitol Theatre all received plenty of applause for their offerings. Marian & O'Dare, artistic Parisian athletes, and Long & Long, comedy team, were all well received.

After the entertainment there was assembly dancing until 2 o'clock this morning. The floor of the armory was covered with happy couples, who were delighted with the music furnished by the two orchestras.

The attractive decorative scheme at the armory was sort of a tent effect, made of streamers of red and black crepe paper, the unity of which was tastefully enhanced by Knights of Columbus shields placed at various intervals along the walls of the armory.

Florian P. Wingert, who was general chairman of the Charity Ball Committee, has received many congratulations from friends, who realized how much effort he put forth to make this year's ball one of the best in the history of the K. of C.

EGYPTIAN LOCATES TOMB OF ALEXANDER THE GREAT

Alexandria, Egypt, Jan. 25 (AP).—The tomb of Alexander the Great, the location of which has caused much lively discussion among scholars, is believed to be under the Nebi Daniel Mosque in Alexandria.

Prince Omar Toussoun, who sets forth this new view, bases his statement on the history of the conquest of Egypt written by the Arab historian, Ibn Abdel Makan, who died in 871 A. D. Makan mentions five mosques at Alexandria, among them that of the Prophet Daniel, who was then called Zoul Karnein.

Prince Toussoun claims that this name also was given by Arab writers to Alexander the Great, and that Daniel never came to Egypt, but was buried in Warkauk in Mesopotamia. The prince holds that if Daniel had been buried in Alexandria, the Arabs would never have changed the name of the burial place after their conquest of the country, since they, too, revered him as a prophet.

NEWBERRY COMPANY TO HAVE POUGHKEEPSIE STORE

The J. J. Newberry Company, operators of a chain of stores throughout the country, has completed arrangements to locate, under a long term lease, in what is now the Up-to-Date store at 280 Main street, Poughkeepsie. The Newberry Company has a large store on Wall street, this city.

Showing of Contemporary Furniture.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Jan. 25.—(Special to The Kingston Freeman.)—Skidmore College in this city is holding what is thought to be the first exhibition of contemporary furniture and decorative art ever sponsored by an American college. "Contemporary" rather than "modernistic" is the word, for the exaggerated angularity which disfigures much modernistic work is absent from the exhibits in the four rooms which have been arranged in the spacious Skidmore art gallery. The roster of Skidmore students this year includes the Misses Ruth Boove, Dorothy L. Brooks, Ruth Burns, Mary Hubbard, Elizabeth Niles and Margaret Searle of Kingston.

Consecration Of Holy Cross Church

Bishop Manning Consecrates Local Church With Magnificent Ceremonial—Services Largely Attended By Many Visitors—Shrines Blessed.

Today the Rt. Rev. William Thomas Manning, D. D., D. C. L., Bishop of New York, consecrated the Church of the Holy Cross in Pine Grove avenue in the presence of a vast congregation, with all the imposing ceremony of the Episcopal Church. Clergy from Albany to New York and many lay people came to join the congregation of Holy Cross and the people of Kingston in offering this house of prayer to Almighty God. The service began promptly at 11:15 a. m. when the choir situated in the west gallery began a Seventh Century hymn of dedication, Angularis Fundamentum, the procession of altar boys, visiting clergy, and the sacred ministers of the Mass and the parish clergy passing down the left aisle to the main entrance. There they were joined by the wardens of the parish, Theodore E. Smith and Robert G. Groves, to await the coming of the Bishop and his attendants. Headed by cruciter and torch-bearers and accompanied by his chapalus, assistant priest and deacons of honor, Bishop Manning left the rectory, where he had vested, making one of the most colorful and magnificent processions Kingston has seen in its long history. The Bishop was vested in richly embroidered cloth of gold cope and mitre, given to him several years ago by his diocesan clergy, and he carried his pastoral staff, the symbol of his high office, presented to him by the clergy of the diocese of London, England. All of his attendants were vested in copes or dalmatics, vestments peculiar to the office they were performing.

Bishop Knocks at Door.

Arriving at the west door the procession halted while the Bishop read appropriate prayers. With his pastoral staff he knocked upon the door and demanded entrance. After the ancient antiphons had been said between the Bishop and the clergy who were in the inside of the door, the door was swung open by the wardens and the keys of the church presented to the Bishop. The procession of altar boys and parish clergy began their procession toward the sanctuary, the Bishop and his procession following, while the twenty-fourth psalm, "The earth is the Lord's, and all that therein is", was repeated alternately between Bishop and clergy.

Arriving in the sanctuary the Bishop took his place at the faldstool which was situated on the footpace of the altar. Whereupon the junior warden of the parish stepped forward and presented to the Bishop the Instrument of Donation, declaring the property to be free of debt, and requesting consecration. In the traditional language of the church the instrument said in part, "We hereby request the Right Rev. William Thomas Manning, D. D., D. C. L., Bishop of the Diocese of New York, to take the said building under his spiritual direction as Bishop, and to consecrate the same, and thereby separate it from all unhallowed, worldly and common uses, and solemnly dedicate it to the holy purposes above mentioned. And we do moreover hereby relinquish all claim to any right of disposing of the said building, or allowing of the use of it in any way inconsistent with the terms and true meaning of this Instrument of Donation and with the consecration hereby requested of the Bishop of this Diocese."

The Consecration.

Bishop Manning then began the act of consecration, following the service as set forth in the Revised Book of Common Prayer recently adopted by the Episcopal Church, pronouncing blessings upon the places of the seven sacraments of the church, the font, the altars, the place of confirmation, the pulpit, the place of the sacrament of holy matrimony, and the confessional. Following which he gave the Sentence of Consecration to the Rev. John Sears Baldwin, O. H. C., who read it to the congregation. The Bishop completed the act by laying the Sentence upon the high altar, and giving a last blessing. A more solemn and picturesque ceremony could not be imagined.

The Service of Thanksgiving.

The Bishop and his chaplains then descended to the sanctuary floor, taking his place before the altar. There he was joined by the sacred ministers of the Mass. Together they said the preparation, while the choir sang the Introit, "Oh How Awful is This Place! This the House of God, This is the Gate of Heaven." After which the Bishop and his chaplains went to the beautiful temporary throne which had been built for the occasion, from which he pontificated at the Mass which followed. The greatly augmented choir of Holy Cross, under the direction of Walter J. Kidd, organist and choirmaster of the church, magnificently sang the music of the Mass to Palestrina's famous "Missa Brevis". The "Urbs Beata" was used for the sequence, and "Glorious Things of Theo Are

Offer $50,000,000 To Help Chicago Financial Muddle

Chicago, Jan. 25 (AP).—Temporary solution to Chicago's financial problem was several steps nearer today.

The outstanding development was the announcement by Silas H. Strawn, chairman of the citizens' relief committee, that a $50,000,000 pool had been pledged by business, industrial and railroad interests to loan money on tax anticipation warrants.

However, the announcement was accompanied by an intimation that no loans would be made until the public officials agreed to cooperate in cutting all possible expenses.

In the meantime, the city's twice-vetoed budget of $59,514,897 became effective — Mayor William Hale Thompson failing to veto it.

With the budget in effect the city's tax-levying ordinance can be made effective February 4. Then—if buyers can be found—tax anticipation warrants can be sold to pay employes, who have had no salary checks this month.

Mayor Thompson said he did not veto the budget for the third time, because: "I do not desire to prevent city employes from getting their pay and thereby force them into the hands of loan sharks. Should I again veto the cuts made in the health, fire, police and street cleaning departments, the immediate result might be chaos."

Immediately after voting the budget into effect, the council adopted a resolution calling upon Governor Louis L. Emmerson for a special session of the legislature to solve Chicago's tax puzzle.

Governor Emmerson was in Chicago, addressing the National Council of State Legislature. He said he would not call a special session until a definite, detailed program was outlined.

Later, in an address, the governor said the "worn-out taxing system" in Illinois was to blame for the state's financial promlems.

Yesterday was another pay day for 13,200 teachers—but board of education officials today were still seeking money to meet the payroll.

The county board voted to pay salaries of 4,000 employes in tax anticipation warrants of small denominations—to be cashed at neighborhood stores and banks.

Added to the crisis was the announcement from trustees of the Chicago sanitary district, that it must sell more than $500,000 worth of anticipation warrants or default bond interest due Feb. 1.

Declares Embargo Against Parrots

Washington, Jan. 25 (AP).—With the importation of parrots prohibited through Presidential decree, government health officials expect to have the current outbreak of psittacosis, or parrot fever, "well in hand" within a short time.

This view was expressed by Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming after President Hoover had issued a proclamation placing an embargo upon the birds. Previously he had told the chief executive that immediate action was necessary.

Mr. Hoover's proclamation was issued late yesterday and set forth that for an unlimited period, "no parrot may be introduced into the United States or any of its possessions or dependencies from any foreign port."

Parrot fever is a mysterious and often fatal malady contracted, it is believed, only from infected parrots. It resembles typhoid fever, but is complicated by pulmonary symptoms similar to those present in pneumonia. So far as is known, it is not communicable from person to person.

In the course of the recent outbreak, eight deaths have been attributed to this disease and more than 50 illnesses have been reported from as widely distant localities as Minnesota, Maryland, Ohio, Florida, California, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and New York.

The embargo will be enforced by quarantine officers.

Annual St. Paul Men's Club Supper.

The Men's Club of St. Paul Lutheran Church, 355 Hasbrouck avenue, will serve its annual supper on next Tuesday, January 28. It will be a roast beef dinner. Tickets may be secured from T. Rice or at the door. The meal will be served from 5 to 8 o'clock.

Mombaccus Man HasGoodMemory

Shokan, Jan. 23.—James M. Herring of Mombaccus Center, in some recent correspondence to The Freeman, commented upon the similarity of the weather conditions for the first half of the winter of 1871 and the same period of this winter. It would seem that the former Olivelto's reminiscences coincide pretty well with other records having to do with the state of the weather in '71.

There was practically no snow in these parts from the beginning of winter in 1870 up to January 24, when there was a fall of six inches. On the 16th and 17th it was rainy, warm and muddy, very much like the weather conditions on January 13-15 of this year. Cold weather set in on the 22nd and from that date until February 14 some 31 inches of snow fell. Mr. Herring states that according to his recollection the ice remained solid at Boiceville until April 3; this may have been the case, though there was a very warm spell on February 18 and another, accompanied by a freshet on March 22. There was a three-inch fall of snow on April 2.

In regard to the inquiries about certain old friends and neighbors in what is now the north reservoir section: "Mart" Every is now living on the old Curtis Deadie place in Traver Hollow. Mr. Every is chairman of the town board of assessors and is still engaged in farming. Mrs. Every, the former Minnie Beadle, and her husband were welcome visitors to this village only the other day. Ed. Beadle, a brother of Mrs. Every, lives with his family at the top of the hill on part of the family acres. The road leading into the hollow, past Mr. Herring's old home, is now in good shape and the Everys have no trouble negotiating the hill in their new Chevrolet coupe.

James K. DuBois, another acquaintance of whom Mr. Herring made inquiry, is a resident of Ashokan village and is associated on the board of assessors with Martin J. Every. David Furman, who was for many years a quarryman and farmer living in the Coons district, is leading a retired life in Kingston, where he makes his home with his elder daughter, Bertha, and her husband, Jervis Bell. Mr. Furman occasionally revisits the scenes of his earlier days, calling on relatives and friends who still live on the mountain.

Joseph H. DeWitt, who lives on part of the Susan Eichler farm and is owner of a large tract of land just east of the Dunnagan place, says that he remembers Mr. Herring well and would enjoy getting in touch with him again. The writer recalls at the moment no other persons from the upper end of the town who were living there in the early seventies, except, perhaps, Russell and Virgil Satterlee, who now reside in Kingston and Hon. Churchwell, former postmaster and storekeeper at Boiceville, who is living in Highland. Jacob and Arthur Johnson of the old Creek road also live in Kingston, but the Johnson boys were probably of a younger generation than our correspondent. Jacob Every, youngest son of the late John Every, is a resident of Mt. Tromper, about a mile above the old homestead at Cold Brook.

MASCAGNI TO WRITE NEW OPERA FOR TALKIES

Bolzano, Italy (AP). — Mascagni, Italy's best known living composer, is going to do an opera for the talkies.

"I confess that the idea has a great attraction for me," says the noted musician. "Some people in America asked permission to reproduce some of my former works in sound-films. But I considered it would be better to create something new. I intend to get at it just as soon as I have a bit of spare time."

The author of "Cavalleria Rusticana" admits his views on modern music have not changed much, and that he was at first a bit reluctant to consider the new venture.

"However," he opines, "every artistic renovation born in America finishes by becoming adopted in Europe; and since the singing films are becoming more and more widely circulated in the United States, and renowned artists like Feodor Chaliapin and Titto Ruffo have signed contracts to sing in them, we should follow their example and see in what way these innovations may aid opera."

What Mascagni intends to do in his new work is, to use his own words, "create a new sort of music which will be not only modern in the highest sense of the word, but which will have a marked national character, because that should be the prevailing note of our Italian music. It will be something entirely different from what has been done before, and I do not expect to succeed right away."

His conversion to the idea of "talkie-ized" opera dates, he says, from a recent visit to Paris, where he saw and heard one of the new sound-films for the first time.

"I was amazed by the great possibilities of this really miraculous invention," he says. "There is no need for an orchestra, and the sound is so realistic that one might take a talking movie for a real play."

Mascagni, moreover, professes to see a reawakened interest in opera here in Italy. He has noted that the audiences at his personally conducted symphony concerts are proving more and more appreciative of old masterpieces and often have asked for encores of operatic airs that the present generation has never heard.

From this he concludes that the crisis in the Italian lyric theatre, so often deplored, is ending. He attributes this to reorganizations effected in existing companies, and to the facilities and support offered to promoters by Mussolini.

"True," he concedes, "we are not yet in the happy situation of France, where the Society of Authors has a great influence, and by whose means the musicians' interests are well safeguarded. But we are on the same route, and we hope to go forward with success. Thus our financial situation has been bettered, thanks to the Duce's action. As you see, there's reason for being optimistic."

In conclusion Mascagni has a kind word for the silent films, which he says afford employment to many excellent pianists who would otherwise be jobless; and he says there were never so many children taking piano lessons in Italy as today.

His great hope, however, lies in the sound-film which will be able to bring Italian opera within the reach of all classes, and so counteract the attractions of jazz and other modern music. Among latter-day composers he owns up to admiring Ravel, whose "Spanish Hours" he says pleased him immensely.

AROUND THE WORLD

Havana (AP). — More sparkling drinks for tourists are promised by a report that the new commercial treaty with France provides for duty free importation of champagne.

Rome (AP).—The ministry of education has ruled that so far as possible the kingdom's schools must use only Italian inks, drawing tools, erasers and the like. Foreign products can be adopted only in exceptional cases.

Canberra (AP).—The Australian federal government has decreed that export of rams to South Africa and South America must stop, holding that it is suicidal to build up the flocks of countries competing for Australia's wool market.

Swakopmund, West Africa (AP).—A German high school here has been taken over by the mandatory government. It has a faculty of 15 and all instruction is given in German.

Berlin (AP).—The German Academic Exchange Service reports that it placed 78 foreign students in German schools last year and sent 78 Germans abroad. Of the foreigners, 56 came from America and an equal number of Germans went to the United States.

Brussels (AP).—An additional ten per cent reduction in output by the Continental Steel Trust is foreshadowed for January and February by the Monthly Review of the Chamber of Commerce of the Center, mouthpiece for the Belgian metal industry.

Budapest (AP).—As one result of a visit to the United States by a superior officer of the metropolitan police, declarations by prisoners are hereafter to be taken on wax discs or rolls. The records will then be introduced in court as evidence.

Dublin (AP).—Baldonnel, the Free State's army aerodrome, from which Huhnefeld, Fitzmaurice and Koehl started on the first successful westward flight across the Atlantic, is being equipped for civil aviation purposes to bring it to the stand of an international airport. A powerful lighting plant is being installed.

Athens (AP).—Women over 30 who can read and write have been granted municipal suffrage in Greece by government decree.

50 horsepower six cylinder engine

Not until you drive the new Chevrolet Six can you appreciate what a wonderful improvement has been made in its famous six-cylinder valve-in-head engine. With its capacity increased to 50 horsepower, it has great reserve energy for sweeping up the steepest hills—for swift acceleration—and for sustained high speeds. Its power flows evenly and smoothly. And it is extremely flexible in traffic. In fact—it does everything you could possibly want a motor to do. Yet it is remarkably economical in its use of gasoline and oil. Come in today for a ride!

Electron and Molecule

The electron is the smallest known unit in electricity. It may be either positive or negative. The atom is the smallest unit of any chemical element. The molecule is the smallest part into which any body can be divided without destroying its substance as such. It may be identical with the atom as in the case of mercury or argon. It usually consists of the union of two or more atoms. According to the atomic theory all material substances are composed of atoms of a comparatively small number of kinds, all the atoms of the same kind being uniform in size and weight and other properties. The atom is to be conceived as a complex system whose component parts are in rapid orbital motion.

The Winner

He was in the habit of lunching regularly at the same restaurant. One day he called the waiter to him and said:

"John, instead of tipping you every day I'm going to give you a lump sum at the end of every month. It will be more convenient for me."

"Thank you, sir," answered the waiter. "But I wonder if you'd mind paying me in advance for this month?"

"Well, that's a strange request. However, here's $5. I suppose you are rather hard up."

"Oh, no, sir!" smiled John, slipping the money into his pocket. "Only I'm leaving here today."

Long-Lived Poets

Poets, on the whole, are a long-lived race, writes "Looker-on" in the London Daily Chronicle, and some records are recalled of poets laureate. Of those in office since the time of Ben Jonson, most have reached a good old age, and held office for many years. Wordsworth, for instance, lived to be eighty, Sir William Davenant eighty-two, Tennyson eighty-three, and Colley Cibber eighty-six. The average tenure of the laureateship has been over twenty years. Southey held it for thirty years, and Tennyson for forty-seven.

The Word "Anecdote"

Today we know that the word "anecdote" simply refers to a pithy account of any incident, usually a short, entertaing narrative.

Originally, however, an anecdote was a secret history, a sort of a sub rosa story of unpublished events, this significance being indicated by its root source.

It is in this sense that it is used, for instance, by Procopius in his portrayal of the private life of Justinian and Theodora.—Kansas City Star.

Get in First and Last Word

The female of the species actually gets in the first and the last word. According to the magazine Good Health girls learn to talk six weeks sooner than boys, while recent studies in Illinois show that women live longer than men. Of the 60 centenarians who died there last year, 35 were women. Above 60 the female deaths were more numerous than the male, below 60 less numerous, showing that more women pass eighty than men.

About the Folks

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Washington and Miss Mildred Jones left Friday by auto for Emporia, Va., where they will spend two weeks visiting Mr. and Mrs. Washington's parents.

Mrs. Chester Hamilton of 37 Franklin street has returned home from New Brighton, Staten Island, where she attended the funeral of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Charles H. Adams.

On Monday Mr. and Mrs. William D. Quick and family of High Falls left by motor for West Palm Beach, Florida, where they will remain for about six weeks. They will visit Havana before returning home.

Oscar Hahn, who for many years held a responsible position in the shipping department of the Canfield Supply Company, has accepted a position as superintendent of building for a large apartment house in New York city.

Society Notes

Surprise Shower.

A miscellaneous surprise shower was given Wednesday evening by Mrs. Samuel D. Scudder, Jr., to Miss Nellie Van Steenberg at her home, 117 Lucas avenue, in honor of her approaching marriage. In addition to Kingston friends there were guests from out of town.

THE JOINERS

News of Interest to Members of Fraternal Societies.

Ladies' night will be observed tonight by the officers and members of Charles DeWitt Council, No. 91, J. O. U. A. M. All members, their wives and lady friends are invited to attend. The entertainment starting at 7:45 will be followed by dancing. Refreshments will be served during the evening.

Masonic Hall on Wall street was filled to capacity on Friday evening with members of Clinton Chapter, O. E. S., and visitors who had gathered to pay honor to the newly installed worthy matron, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Kieffer and worthy patron, Herbert C. Christian. Upon entering the room one was indeed impressed with the beauty of the setting, the East of the room having been transformed into a garden scene. A beautiful degree was given to the honored guests by the officers and floral staff of the chapter, assisted by eight small children. A program of music was rendered by the High School Sextet, under the direction of Prof. Leonard Stine and readings were given by Miss Rose Gramer. The entertainers were forced to respond to many encores. The chapter presented a beautiful diamond dinner ring to Mrs. Kieffer and a fitted traveling case to Mr. Christian. Mrs. Kieffer and Mr. Christian were presented with numerous other gifts from officers and friends and gifts were also presented to Miss Frieda Hayes, Miss Mary J. Howard and Miss Bertha Waterman. At the close of the meeting a delicious banquet was served and a social hour enjoyed. Much credit is due to the associate matron, Frieda L. Hayes, for the beauty of the decorations and the success of the reception, as the entire arrangements were in her charge.

Three Smart New Winter Felt Hats From France

Among interesting chapeaux offered by Paris is an attractive helmet idea, shown at the top. The upturned brim features the other two.

Problems When Choosing Clothes for Traveling

The entire clothes problem is changed for the woman who plans on taking her clothes traveling or whose business makes her a transient, says a fashion correspondent in the New York Herald-Tribune. It becomes complicated by the question of "How will this pack?" before any decision or selection can be made. Indeed, this demands precedence over every other consideration.

For while becomingness, line and color hold their primary positions of importance this question of how each garment will look when it comes out of the trunk must be taken into account, for so often there is no time or opportunity for pressing or cleaning when the unpacking begins.

The tweeds, which are in favor, have an unusual appeal to the woman who is to travel, as do the right sort of jerseys. A shake when they come out of their tissue paper folds and they are pristine in their freshness. Black broadcloth, for the more formal suit, is also a satisfactory traveler, as well as being the color favorite of the season.

For evening clothes, and particularly wraps, the problem of mussing and of space must be considered seriously. This makes fur, that intriguing delight of winter, a luxury indeed. The stay-at-home sister may indulge herself to the extent of her pocketbook, but because of limited space fur is not practical for the traveler.

Fortunately, we have the choice this season of many charming evening wraps of velvet which are a real delight and which have been created in the quintessence of smartness without resorting to fur. Try to resist the lure of skins except for the topcoat which you will carry over your arm when you are not actually wearing it.

Gay Silk Scarfs Worn With Tweed Suits, Coats

Enhancing the effectiveness of tweed suits, sports coats, and frocks of lightweight woolens are very gay scarfs made from rough silks. The light colors of summer have deepened to autumnal shades, including the popular rust, wine reds, greens and blues.

There are several attractive ways of wearing the sports scarfs, simply looped at the throat in Ascot fashion adjusted as a stock to fill in the neckline, or tied about the neck with a perky bow at the left shoulder. Stripes, bold plaids and checks are the most charming.

In lieu of the topcoat, the tweed cape is decidedly new. This is very tailored, with the narrow fitted shoulder line and is severely plain, falling to seven-eighths length with a straight hemline. The side sections are seamed at the shoulders similar to sleeves, with a slit toward the front at the waistline for the arms. It creates a very different picture in sports and street wear.

Gray Reflects Colors More Than Black, White

Gray, like white and black, can reflect any color. In fact, gray, being among the medium tones, reflects the colors about it even more completely than does dead black or pure white. A perfectly neutral gray will become red in red light, purple in sunset light.

Definite colors tinged with gray share this quality of reflecting surrounding tints and blending them with their own hue. This gift for reflecting the atmosphere, the lighting, of outdoors or in, the hair color, the complexion of the woman who wears them, makes the grayed dress colors attractive. They lend themselves to innumerable changes.

Hats Architectural

It is a short step today from the architect's drawing board to the atelier of the artistic dress designer. This is shown on the new printed velvet afternoon frocks. They frequently are white imprinted on black and the designs are made to conform to the present skyscraper mode.

Market For Fruits And Vegetables

New York, Jan. 25 (AP).—(State Department of Agriculture and Markets)—The demand for Florida celery on the wholesale district this morning was moderate for large sized stock, but light on medium to small. Crates of three and ten dozen stalks in the rough peddled out from $1.12½ to $3.00

Trading on western Iceberg lettuce was only fair and the market as a whole was inactive. California crates of four and five dozen heads jobbed out from $4.00 to $5.50, rarely higher, and six dozen heads brought $3.25-$4.25.

Florida, Big Boston lettuce packed in 1½ bushel hampers realized from $1.75-$3.50.

The Imperial valley of California became the main source of lettuce supply and shipped 655 cars for the previous week.

Price changes on New York upstate fruits and vegetables were small and unimportant. Early morning trading on most lines of produce was generally slow.

WAS ONLY WOMAN SENATOR OF THE UNITED STATES

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 25 (AP).—Mrs. Rebecca Latimer Felton, the only woman ever to hold a seat in the United States Senate, pioneer temperance worker and author, is dead at the age of 94.

Mrs. Felton died in a hospital here shortly before last midnight from bronchial pneumonia. She had contracted a cold on a trip to Atlanta last week from her Cartersville, Ga., home in the interest of the Georgia Training School for Girls, but can not submit to treatment until she has completed her mission.

The senatorship, which she held for a period of 22 hours in November, 1922, upon appointment by former Governor Thomas Hardwick, was her only public office, but in that brief time she made a dramatic speech upon the floor which attracted national interest.

She was a vigorous supporter of former Governor Alfred E. Smith in his race for the presidency.

During the 1928 campaign she said:

"I was a pioneer in temperance work in the state (Georgia) and joined the W. C. T. U. forty years ago. When I enlisted in the organization it was non-political. I am grieved to know that some Georgia women are now dragging a clean, white and much-honored organization in the mire and filth of dirty politics in a mud-slinging campaign."

Commenting on prohibition enforcement on another occasion Mrs. Felton said:

"I was for temperance in the days when I was hissed for talking against liquor, but I don't like this way of shooting people in automobiles when they fail to stop to be searched."

VICE-PRESIDENT IS 70 YEARS OLD TODAY

Washington, Jan. 25 (AP).—Charles Curtis, once a boy on an Indian reservation and now vice-president of the United States, today celebrated his seventieth birthday with his political foes, the Democrats, joining Republicans in tributes, congratulations and best wishes.

As the senate convened, Senator Copeland, Democrat, New York, a physician, gained the floor and said that it was his opinion as a doctor that the vice-president would have many more years in which to serve his country.

Curtis, who served twenty years in the senate from Kansas, smiled at this and replied, "Thank you."

Senator Blease, Democrat, South Carolina, asserted:

"I sincerely hope you will be President of the United States of America."

Palm Beach, Fla., Jan. 25 (AP).—Grantland Rice, sports writer, will rule for another year as artists and writers golf champion and Arthur W. Yates, Rochester, N. Y., will continue to hold the Lake Worth amateur title.

Blankfield Sells Business to the F. B. Matthews Co.

Wholesale Grocery Business on Field Court Taken Over by Matthews Company—Understood Business is to Be Taken Over Monday.

It is understood that the F. B. Matthews Company, Inc., wholesale grocers on Railroad avenue, have contracted to purchase the wholesale grocery business of Leon Blankfield on Field Court, and that possession will be taken on Monday.

No verification of the matter could be obtained and just what the Matthews Company planned to do with the big plant on Field Court is not known.

The Blankfield business was established some years ago by William R. Harrison and Leon Blankfield under the firm name of William R. Harrison & Company. At the death of Mr. Harrison the business was continued by Mr. Blankfield under his own name.

The plant on Field Court is a large one.

Episcopal Primate Critically Ill.

Chicago, Jan. 25 (AP).—Bishop Charles P. Anderson, primate of the Episcopal Church in America, remained critically ill today. The bishop, recovering from a sinking period late in the day, rested in an "unchanged condition" throughout the night. Dr. James B. Herrick, his physician, said the longer this continued, the more chance there would be for recovery. The primate, who is 67 years old and Bishop of Chicago, was stricken with a heart attack Wednesday and again Thursday.

Memoriam

In loving memory of Jane J. Roosa who passed away January 25, 1922.

Eight years ago today she has gone
From this world of grief and trouble
To the land of peace and rest with
Its glories untold, but again we hope
To meet you when the day of life has fled, hope in joy and peace to greet you on the heavenly shore where no
farewell tear is shed.
SISTER AND NEPHEW, MRS. MARY A. ROOSA, WILLIAM D. ROOSA.

IN MEMORIAM.

In sad and loving memory of my dear father Nicholas Schulden, who died one year ago today, January 25, 1929.

You are not forgotten
Nor will you ever be.
As long as life and memory last
I will remember thee.

HOMELESS AMERICA.

If a national survey made by a big lumberman company is correct, this nation is almost homeless. Or rather, inadequately housed. There are said to be in the country today 14,000,000 houses that need replacement or remodelling. In many cases the remodelling may be a matter of taste rather than comfort or necessity. Yet the obsolescense and mortality of houses are far greater than is ordinarily supposed.

In the metropolitan district of Chicago alone, the demand for new, modern homes is resulting in the erection of houses at a rate twice as great as the growth of population. This might be supposed to create a surplus, but it doesn't, because for nearly every new home built, an old one is torn down to make way for the city's business growth.

It is said to be the same in other growing cities throughout the country. Business expansion sweeps away existing homes and entire residence sections, and the new building must replace them as well as take care of the increased population.

Even more encouraging is the fact that the method of living has so improved with modern conveniences and modern prosperity and is so widespread that even the poorest will no longer live in houses that are not up to date. But the increase in Kingston has for years been very much out of proportion to the increase in population, but has been forced by the demand for better homes. A few years ago when the census disclosed 700 unoccupied houses in Kingston there was great ado among unintelligent pessimists over this real evidence of prosperity and progress. The reason 700 houses were empty was that no family was so poor that it would occupy them, because of their condition. That reason still applies to many of the unoccupied houses in the city.

MORE CHINESE TRAGEDY.

Famine in some part of China seems to be matter of news almost every year, but the accounts indicate that the present one in the northwest section is the most complete and terrible reported in a long time. The ravages of famine and consequently disease are said to have already cost two million lives and are likely to cost two million more. It seems that the terrible conditions have brought about even murder and cannibalism. We read of the reversion of whole sections to barbarism, of unburied corpses devoured by wolves, of miserable humanity satisfying its hunger on the flesh of its fellows, and—but some of the details are too dreadful for print. The situation appears to be one of the most urgent calls upon the humanity of the prosperous and charitable ever put on record.

China is an old, old country, apparently with a larger population than it can support in even a fair degree of comfort, and so when crops fail or there are other widespread disasters an immense number of the poorer people become the victims of conditions which they are powerless to prevent. Frequent revolutions and war tend to impoverish great numbers even when there is no actual famine.

Americans are fortunate to live in a comparatively new country, with much land yet to be taken up and abundant resources still undeveloped. A new country in any part of the world has similar advantages and may be regarded as a true land of promise by crowded populations, even though "crude" from the European point of view.

Not all of former President Coolidge's writings—and he has piled up a considerable amount of them since he retired from public office—will live as long as his proposed 500-word history of the United States. This history is to be carved on the side of Mount Rushmore in South Dakota in letters five or more inches deep and high enough to be seen miles away. The brief story of this country from the Declaration of Independence to the present time is to be a part of the great national memorial being carved on the mountain in the Black Hills. Coolidge's words will stand near the colossal figures of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Roosevelt. Geologists say that the rate of erosion on the granite escarpment of Mount Rushmore is an inch in 100,000 years. Unless radical earth changes take place or the mountain is removed by man, the memorial should endure at least 500,000 years.

"Manage your money—don't let it manage you", was the Thrift Week slogan this year. It isn't a bad slogan; in fact, it is quite a good one. It indicates clearly the new idea of thrift as including more than saving and bargain-hunting. The slogan can be nicely adapted to other phases of life, too. How about "Manage your activities—don't let them manage you", or "Manage your time—don't let it manage you"? The good executive does that whether he is in public office or at the head of some business. The good housewife and mother does it. There isn't any reason why some of the rest of us shouldn't do it, too. It would mean a great saving in nervous energy and perhaps fewer complaints of always being too busy to do the things one really wants to do.

According to Prof. S. S. Huebner of the University of Pennsylvania 94 people out of every 100 are "financially incompetent." They can hardly be quite "broke", however, for most of them manage to support families or themselves, besides furnishing good pasture land for the accumulators of great wealth.

PHYSICAL DEFECTS AND MENTAL.

I have spoken before about a patient who had to be confined to a mental hospital for two years, with no signs of recovery.

Two months after the extraction of some teeth and filling of others, the superintendent noticed an improvement in the condition. She gradually recovered and was discharged from the hospital.

The superintendent had dental work done on other patients and found that the infection—the poison from the teeth—was really the cause of the delusions or hallucinations of the patients. When these were removed the patient lost those sensations and hallucinations.

And you remember when some one in your family was ill that he or she got some strange ideas into their heads.

Sometimes they are delusions, fears, strange noises in the head, "visions" of various kinds, excitability, stupor and other conditions.

Dr. O. A. McLarty presents a case in which a patient with tonsilitis thought she was in a train wreck; a case of typhoid fever where the patient (of modest circumstances) thought he owned a Rolls Royce and had his own chauffeur; a case of sinus trouble with pus formation who insisted on going to Niagara Falls; an acute heart case where the patient thought the people were preparing for her to die; a case with a kidney ailment where the patient had most unusual visions; a patient with jaundice who was terribly depressed and irritable; a case of goitre in which the patient thought that people were following him and trying to kill him; a case of pernicious anaemia where the patient was very drowsy and sleepy during the day and at night had terrible visions and became frightened and noisy; patients with fears and hallucinations following surgical operations.

All these patients became free from mental disturbances when they recovered from their physical ailments.

Do you wonder therefore that many of our mental hospitals can now show a recovery of 50 per cent of their admissions?

Do you wonder that they all have dental clinics, and dentists that give their full time to this work?

Now what about this for all of us?

It may be that some of our depression, our fears, our head noises, our "big" ideas, or our "inferiority complex" may be due to some "chronic" poisoning.

Certainly where an individual has always been normal, and his parents before him, and he becomes "strange" in his manner, an investigation for some physical defect should at once be made.

A QUESTION of HONOR

by Ruth Cross

As a result of Love calls to Anne Grimm, and sends her flying through the night to warn Jessie Glenn of a plot she is hatching against her husband. She overhears Leon Morse, whom she has promised to marry for his money, discussing the plot with his attorney, Robert Douglas, at the Lodge. Accompanied by Sheb, the young engineer rushes to the dam and, after a stroke of workmanship inspired by an offer of double wages from Morse's agents, Sheb survives Tony, a Mexican, and thwarts his attempt to dynamite the dam. Jessie returns to the cabin and is hastily remembered priest marries Glenn and Anne. Glenn then returns to the dam to supervise its completion.

Chapter 21

LOVE VERSUS RICHES

THE morning brought two surprises—the first a pleasant one. Anne had just reached the stage in her house-cleaning where things looked indisputably worse than they had before she started. She was going back and forth in a perfect frenzy of housewifely zeal, putting out bedding, rugs, curtains—everything that could by any conceivable chance need airing.

On one of these trips to the front porch, she spied two figures coming up the trail—three, if Japheth was to be counted. Suddenly, she dropped the rug she was shaking, and started joyfully down the steps. Without a doubt, the figure behind Sheb was Delphine! In that moment, Anne forgave the vociferous, tyrannical Frenchwoman everything. Never in her whole life had she been so glad to see anybody.

Delphine had already darted around Sheb, who was clumping along, stolidly resigned, with a huge suitcase in either hand. She rushed up to Anne and flung her arms around her, sobbing and laughing and talking all in the same breath. Her presence was quickly and calmly explained.

She had seen "M'sieur Sheb" when he came to bring the note—cial, she cast her expressive eyes heavenward, what a consternation, what a hubbub, what a row! And "M'sieur Morse" all dressed up waiting for the priest that had gone somewhere else! Oh, it was too delicious! Delphine fairly spilled over into laughter. Well, she had seen "M'sieur" Sheb.

It had come to her like out of the sky — madame must have clothes of course. She must have a maid. She, Delphine, would come. M'sieur Sheb could carry the suitcases—whether it pleased him or not. She had overtaken him a short distance from the Lodge; of course no one had seen her leave—she had taken care for that. Now she was here, she meant to stay.

An hour later, Anne, clad in a simple dark dress with one of Delphine's pretty aprons over it stood atop of a teetering eminence composed of a kitchen chair with boxes piled on it. She was handing things down to Delphine from the top pantry shelf. Her sleeves were rolled high above white elbows, her hair rumpled, her cheeks brightly flushed. For the first time in her life, she was revelling in the primal woman's joy of pursuing dirt to its last top-shelf-in-the-corner intrenchment.

Of a sudden Delphine halted in her regular back and forth trot between pantry and cook table and muttered something in French. She held up her hand warningly to Anne and quickly disappeared towards the front of the house. She came back almost immediately, her eyes wide and startled, her face the picture of calamity. Before she could speak, Anne guessed the truth.

She climbed down slowly from her swaying perch, rolled down her sleeves and patted her hair thoughtfully into place. Delphine looked after her as she went toward the living-room, with mingled awe and pity. "Pauvre enfant!" she muttered fervently to herself. Then she climbed up on the boxes and began rummaging about.

In the living-room Mrs. Wilmot sat on the edge of a chair, fanning herself with her handkerchief and frankly panting.

"What's Delphine doing up here?" the older woman began without preface or greeting.

"She came back with Sheb when he went to take my note," Anne explained, dropping down on a chair near the table.

"Well, she'll have to whistle for her quarter's salary, but that of course is no concern of mine. And so—this is where you expect to live, is it?" Mrs. Wilmot's single, ironic glance about the room made it seem actually to shrink; to look almost mean and insignificant.

"Yes," she said, "this is where I expect to live. Delphine and I have just cleaned it from floor to ceiling. It's been the best fun I've ever had in my life, and—it does look clear and liveable, doesn't it?"

Mrs. Wilmot grunted enigmatically. "I always knew," she observed at last in a perfectly matter of fact tone, "that you were a fool. But that's neither here nor there. There was a postscript to your note this morning from this—or——"

"From my husband, Mr. Glenn," Anne suggested quietly.

The other woman looked at her sharply, but passed over that intimation for the time. "I don't know his name and I don't want to know it," she said. "At all events, there was some high-sounding talk or other about paying me for your upbringing——"

Anne leaned forward interestedly. "Let me see it, Auntie; the note."

Mrs. Wilmot reached into her hand bag, took out a crumpled sheet and tossed it to her. Anne smoothed it out with hurrying fingers. Glenn had said that he would make things right, but she had supposed that he meant to pay it a little at a time——

"Your upbringing indeed!" her aunt went on with unmitigated scorn. "He couldn't pay for your face cream. But that's not what I've come about either. You are married?"

Anne nodded rather absently. "This morning at 8 o'clock. Aunt Emily," she added, looking up from the note, "he says in this that he's going to pay you in full, and he will. He would never have written that if he hadn't known he could do it somehow."

Mrs. Wilmot glanced at her sharply. "He hasn't any money, has he?"

"I don't think so—only his salary or whatever he gets for his work. But perhaps he means to borrow it."

"Humph, very likely! Where was this—man last night?"

Anne met her glance squarely. "Leon ought to be able to tell you that," she said.

"And where has he been today?"

The blood rushed up hotly into Anne's face. "He went away 10 minutes after we were married. I have not seen him since."

The older woman's face registered unmistakable relief. "In that case," she said, "all is not yet lost. A divorce can easily be arranged and the whole disgraceful affair hushed up. Leon," she leaned forward impressively, "is still willing to marry you!"

Anne stared back dumbly at that placid, self-assured old face. Then she got slowly to her feet, steadying herself against the table. "I'm sorry I've disappointed and failed you, Auntie. I think it's just possible," she looked away from the bright little eyes which seemed to be boring mercilessly into her soul, "if you could know how that thought has tortured me, you wouldn't feel quite so bitter——But I did the only thing I could under the circumstances—it wasn't premeditated—I scarcely had time to think even—— At all events, now that it's done, I mean to stand by it, and I haven't the slightest intention of getting a divorce."

"You haven't, eh?" Mrs. Wilmot did not appear particularly discomposed. She was on the point of expressing herself further, however, when the quiet was broken by a piercing scream. A second scream, a clatter of things falling and tumbling, told Anne that the leaning tower of boxes in the kitchen pantry had probably collapsed with Delphine. She excused herself hurriedly and went toward the kitchen.

BRAZILIAN STATE TO HAVE 40 AIR FIELDS

Natal, Rio Grande do Norte, Brazil (AP).—Another trans-Atlantic flight, that of Larre Borges and Leon Challes from Seville to Maranjaju, this state, has brought its importance in the flying scheme of things once more to world notice.

Back of the development of aviation here stands Presidente Juvenal Lamartine who has established eighteen landing fields already and plans to create twenty-two others before his term as chief executive of the state expires.

Rio Grande do Norte, sticking out into the Atlantic as the point of the eastern shoulder of Brazil, directly south of the Azores and also nearest to Africa, has a strategic position in inter-continental flying from the northern hemisphere, either the United States or Europe. It is the first landfall for aviators from either northern continent.

Aviators have said that Natal offers ideal conditions for landing either land or sea planes. Its field is the best in Brazil, as its bay, eight miles square, is protected so well that seaplanes land without any drawbacks of rough water or shallows.

All aviation lines along the Atlantic coasts of the two hemispheres must pass Natal and three companies have already built hydroplane bases here. These are the French Aeropostal, the American Nyrba, and the German Condor.

But it is not in aviation alone that Presidente Lamartine is interested. His other two hobbies are public instruction and women's suffrage. He has established schools throughout the state where none existed before, and the state was the first to give the vote to women in Brazil.

HISTORIAN PUNCTURES ANOTHER HEROIC MYTH

Greenock, Scotland (AP).—Robert the Bruce and his persevering spider are the latest victims of the process of historical fact research.

In an address delivered here Thomas Johnstone, Under-Secretary of State for Scotland, said that so far from Bruce being an admirable personality he was simply a feudal bully.

He also said that in the winter of 1306-7, when the Bruce was supposed to be lying half-starved in a cave learning his message of courage from the spider, the Scottish hero was in fact in the rude, but by no means uncomfortable, surroundings of the Norwegian Court.

THE BEST MEMORY SYSTEM

Forget each kindness that you do
As soon as you have done it;
Forget the praise that falls to you
The moment you have won it;
Forget the slander that you hear
Before you can repeat it;
Forget each slight, each spite, each sneer,
Wherever you may meet it.

Remember every kindness done
To you whate'er its measure;
Remember praise by others won
And pass it on with pleasure;
Remember every promise made
And keep it to the letter;
Remember those who lend you aid
And be a grateful debtor.

Remember all the happiness
That comes your way in living;
Forget each worry and distress,
Be hopeful and forgiving;
Remember good, remember truth,
Remember heaven's above you,
And you will find, then age and youth,
That many hearts will love you.

There are 25 nerves to the eyes and only 5 to the ears—so its far better to show our friends that we appreciate their friendship than to tell them so.

Son—Dad, I've a notion to settle down and go in for raising chickens.
Dad—Better try owls, son. Their hours would suit you better.

Why should we have to learn to read? They have talking movies now.

A house divided against itself is probably occupied by two in-laws.

It is taken from the New York Times, and tells of some gold fish which got frozen in their bowl. The father of the household in which these fish lived took them out one morning and poured a few drops of brandy down their throats.

The next morning he found them all in a row, still as mice, pretending to be frozen.

"Pat," said the priest, "how do you expect to get into heaven if you go on leading this wicked life and doing no work?"

"Sure, an' it's aisy, yer riverence," said Pat. "For when Oi dote Oi'll go to the gates o' heaven, and Oi'll kape on shuttin' them and openin' them, till St. Peter, gettin' impatient, hollers out, 'For goodness, either come in or stay out!'"

When a financial bubble bursts, a lot of suckers get sprayed.

A young chap was anxious to marry his sweetie and so informed her one night. She said: "Jimmy, I cannot marry you, I have dyspepsia." He replied: "That doesn't matter to me. You can attend your church and I'll attend mine."

Blamed for Everything.

Nurse: "Come and see what the doctor brought your mother."
Tommy: "Yes, and I bet she blames me. He wouldn't have known where we lived if I hadn't got the flu."

The collegiate moustache is like the easy-payment plan—just a little down and a close shave elsewhere to make a show."

Mrs. Junewed: "Now I know what makes husbands so cranky."
Mrs. Bennwed: "What is it, dear?"
Mrs. Junewed: "They simply can't stand going without breakfast and dinner the same day!"

"Has your husband any hobbies?" asked the neighbor who was calling.
"No," said Mrs. Tuggle, "he has rheumatism a good deal, and hives now and then, but he ain't never had no hobbies."

Eleanor Gunn On Fashions

THE QUAINT FROCK FOR THE SOPHISTICATE.

New York.—Modern gowns are a curious medley of the quaint, naive type and the ultra sophisticated. Ruffles are invariably girlish and so present pitfalls for the unwary, but they are being worn again and with them other relics of bygone days, such for example as the lace handkerchief. The lace edged handkerchief, especially Valenciennes or point, has fluttered into a scene entirely feminine, and has waved a gay adieu to the large chiffon handkerchief of recent months. This is of course in keeping with the return of "court jewels," barrel muffs, long gloves and coiffures—to say nothing of waistlines and trains.

More than a hint of Empire lines is creeping into the mode. One does not feel overly confident of their success but with women in a dress up mood, the style is worth trying out. So are sleeves which make a tiny puff or a covering over the shoulder,

Ruffles of taffeta accent the short sleeves, and curved seamings mold this frock sharply on princess lines. Long gloves and a black lace handkerchief are featured accessories.

(Copyright, 1930, by Fairchild)

just to be contradictory since other frocks have a way of dropping off the shoulder in the stately Colonial way.

It is natural enough that taffeta should insinuate itself into our good graces since taffeta is such an aid to attaining smart flares and saucy flounces. For the more fluid silhouette there are less crisp materials, among which of course satin and flat crepes lead. Taffeta however is not taboo even for dresses of this genre, especially is it liked for frocks which are content to flare at a low line. On some of these dresses the circular or very full skirt is either faced with a vivid contrasting color, or softened by a falso hem or bands of self colored net. The ankle length skirt, transparent almost to the knees is a favorite type with the sophisticate.

Broadcloth and fox — there seems to be no end to the style — We'll no doubt see pale colored broadcloth and beige and gray fox for spring — This model is from Worth — Paris — Rita.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A Dainty Frock for a Tiny Miss.

6704. This pleasing model comprises a short waist, the front of which is cut in scalloped outline, and a full straight skirt, arranged in rows of shirring between the scallops. The neck is round. The sleeve—a short puff, is gathered to a narrow band. Taffeta in petal pink, or pale blue, in maize or orchid, or in white with a shoulder bow of ribbon in self or contrasting color would be very attractive for this style. Crepe de chine in white or colors, is also nice. The fulness may be smocked or shirred, between the scallops. These scallops could be piped or bound in a contrasting color, or edged with narrow lace. Cotton prints and gingham are also suggested for this little frock. The waist portions and sleeves could be of checked or figured material and the skirt sections of plain material or, vice versa.

This Pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 2, 3, 4 and 5 years. To make the Dress for a 4 year size will require 1⅞ yard of material 35 inches wide or wider. To bind neck, and lower edges of waist with bias binding will require 1¾ yard 1½ inch wide. The shoulder bow, as illustrated will require 1 yard of ribbon.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Fashion Book Notice.

VODKA KILLS FOXES; EXPERT FACES COURT

Archangel (AP).—Three years ago an Arctic fox farm was opened on Kolguev Island, in the Arctic Ocean, by the State Trading Department.

A certain Professor Poderogi, who claimed to be an expert on fox breeding, was placed at the head of the enterprise. He started in by feeding salt fish to the animals, and giving them vodka as a universal remedy against all sickness.

As a result, the last of the 211 Arctic foxes on the island died a few days ago, leaving the professor sole consumer of the remaining stock of vodka.

He has been placed under arrest and will soon face trial for wasting government resources.

ELEANOR GUNN On Fashions

An Ensemble With Alencon and Chantilly Combined

(Copyright, 1930, by Fairchild)

The ensemble theme is important inside as well as out. Winter trousseaux are gay with lingerie sets, color being varied by white and laces being rather deep in tone. Chantilly and Alencon unite in the ensemble sketched. The combination of two laces is always effective, in this instance peach crepe serves as the foundation fabric. The panties are pleated at the side and flare in accord with the night gown which has a shallow pocket at one side resulting from the curve of the lace.

Amazing Variety in Silhouette in Southern Line

(Copyright 1930, by Fairchild)

SPRING HATS HAVE A DASH AND A WAY WITH THEM

New York—Variety being the spice of life, French milliners have gone about giving it to us in quantities. There is nothing staple or uniform or expected about the spring hats now arriving or in the southern ones now being worn. One feels that anything is likely to happen in millinery and that at last the "dress hat" has a chance.

In the opinion of many, silhouette and fabric are secondary to novelty. There must be something unusual about a hat to make it worthy of the name, and while unusual fabrics bring this about, it is the way in which they are treated and the interesting development of old fabrics which makes for interest. Stitched effects for instance are calculated to change the face of almost any familiar material, felt not excepted. In one way or another stitching registers as a decidedly up and coming detail of spring millinery, whether it be used on felt, taffeta, linen, organdie or any of the other fabrics in use in millinery workrooms. Starched linen has won a place for itself in Florida, but it is really with straws of novel weaves, and of silks and felts which is our immediate concern. Southern hats are inclined to dainty pastel coloring but for town wear chic women conform to the all black hat, or the blue one which complements the costume. Browns and greens remain in all spring collections and reds, especially Chinese reds are omnipresent. It seems pertinent to note that the green range is distinctly light, but blues run the gamut from navy to turquoise.

Many women will rejoice in the news that hat brims, like hemlines, have gone in for irregularity. The long sided hat, especially when turned high at the opposite side is once more a fashion although hardly in Cainsborough proportions.

The picturesque gypsy turban is of wide, black satin, double faced ribbon, draped and crossed in long flattering loops at the back.

At the right is one of the small shapes in natural chauvre soie, with turned up front brim and pleated sides. This is trimmed in orange shantung with three rows of sunie color stitching.

Tea rose panamalaque is used for the dressy model at the lower left. This has an unusual treatment of the back brim where it is trimmed in velvet ribbon, just a shade darker.

The large shape is a lobster color bullibuntle with lobster and peach gros-grain ribbon trimming the brim edge.

MARLBOROUGH

Marlborough, Jan. 24.—Arthur Fredericks spent several days the past week in Poughkeepsie.

Miss Ina DuBois has been ill with a cold.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Brown and Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Fowler expect to leave this week for Florida.

Miss Winifred McDewitt of Poughkeepsie spent the week-end at the home of Mrs. J. N. Wym.

Robert Givens, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Givens, was seriously ill at his home the past week.

Mrs. Charles Warren of Poughkeepsie visited last week Thursday with Mrs. J. J. Ennist.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Newell entertained a few friends at cards on Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Kniffin spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. George Atkins at Poughkeepsie.

James F. Hannigan spent Monday in New York city.

John A. DuBois and Charles Ryan walked over the new Highland-Poughkeepsie bridge one day last week.

A. W. Givens installed a new electric range for Mrs. Cluett Schantz recently.

Mr. and Mrs. William Mascitelli of Middletown spent the week-end with friends here.

An entertainment is being planned for the benefit of Riverside Cemetery, Marlborough, the event to take place in St. Mary's Hall February 15.

The trustees of the Presbyterian Church have been busy laying new floors in the kitchen in the basement and making other needed additions. The ladies of the church financed the work.

Clarence Fetter spent part of last week in New York city.

Mrs. Joseph Smalley is confined to her home with a cold.

Mrs. Barritt Wygant left last week by train for North Carolina. She will go first to Raleigh, N. C., then on to Jacksonville.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Bradley visited Mrs. Margaret Hill in Brooklyn last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Baxter spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Decker at New Paltz.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tierney and son spent Sunday with Mrs. Tierney's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. Barry.

The M. E. Church Missionary Society members are planning together with the Presbyterian Church society and that of West Marlborough to appropriately observe World Day of Prayer March 7. A committee was appointed who will meet with committees of the other two societies to plan a program.

Miss Evelyn Crispell spent the week-end at her home in Kingston.

Mrs. Fred Barnes entertained the Bridge Club on Thursday afternoon.

A. W. Givens has been doing wiring in Advance Theatre for the new talkies.

The Presbyterian Missionary Society decided to hold a money-making affair in February, probably February 20 or 21. A supper, with brief entertainment, and a novel exhibit, will be on the program. Mrs. William Wygant will be in charge of the exhibit. Mrs. N. R. Knapp will assist in directing arrangements for the entertainment.

Lamps Now Are Decorations For The Daytime

By MARGERY TAYLOR
Interior Decoration Editor, McCall's Magazine. Written for The Freeman

Lamps are no longer lights, disguised. They are now new elements for the decorator to set in "just the right place" to produce "just the right color accent."

They are new means, too, for the clever hostess to control the mood of a room or a gathering—to paint a picture with light, to flatter, to intrigue, to stimulate wit, to induce sentimental memories or quiet calm.

Besides inspiration and subtle planning, it is also a matter of watts. Too dim a light may be as great a strain as too much—gloom and dazzle must be avoided. So also must the extremes of number—either the one old center of the ceiling fixture or the assemblage of lamps that make a room as homelike as the lamp department of a big store. Four to six lamps are ample for the average living room.

Don't forget the family in selecting and placing lamps. Father wants to read and the children do their lessons while you sew—and the lamps must be the right height and in the right place.

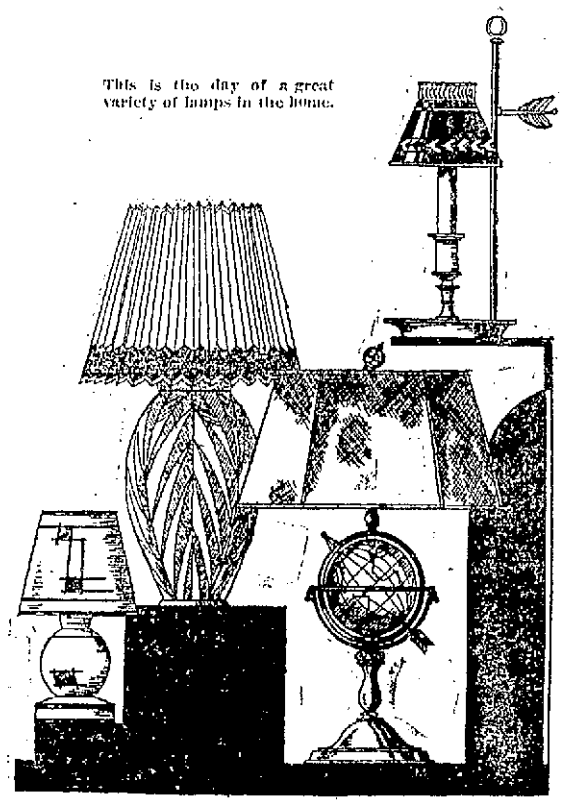
The room and its furniture must be considered in the lighting scheme. Is it a period room? The lamps should not make a historic jumble. Is the decorative scheme elaborate? Then the table lamps should have pottery bases. Have you been charmed by the Colonial? You will want lamps of pewter, brass and glass.

There's the davenport, for instance—table lamps should go at both ends or on the table behind. A small lamp will serve a desk, while the piano or radio needs a bridge or floor lamp.

Select lamps which will serve in unlit beauty in the daytime. The right lamp base will help solve your color problem, whether the room needs "just a touch of green"—or copper, turquoise blue or red. If the room has a color chill, you can warm it up with a mica or parchment shade.

It is unforgiveable these days to flaunt shades with lace medallions, tinsel or elaborate fringes. Color and form are the secret of the new lamp. Map shades are new.

The very latest is the old-fashioned. The old oil-lamp is converted as little as possible. Glass, china, brass, pewter are quaint revivals—and they preserve the old glass chimney—even in wall brackets.



This is the day of a great variety of lamps in the home.

MEXICO DECIDES TO TRAIL ALONG WITH UNCLE SAM

Mexico City, (AP).—Mexico considers its relations with the United States of prime importance in its foreign policy and any contact with Europe must occupy a subordinate place.

This feeling was brought out in discussion of the government's appointmen of an observer at Geneva, when it was explained in authoritative circles that by naming a representative to keep track of the League of Nations' activities Mexico merely followed in the footsteps of its northern neighbor.

Rather than pursue a policy not conforming to that of Washington, and regardless of whether such a difference might prevail without entailing serious embarrassment, the Mexican government, it has been pointed out, prefers to be in accord with the United States on international affairs.

Opening of offices at Geneva, in charge of an observer, means simply that Mexico wishes to keep contact with the League and have an official representative on hand without the necessity of assuming the obligations incurred by membership. If the league and the United States differ in opinion, therefore, Mexico is free to follow whatever policy it likes and so long as the present ideas continue in force there is every reason to believe that it would, in matters of importance, trail along with Uncle Sam.

In a recent newspaper article, said to have been inspired by official sources, the pertinent point was made that Mexico's economic and cultural life is much more closely allied with that of the United States than that of any other country. The cultural relations, while of comparatively recent date, are increasing with what at one time would have been considered incredible strides. Mexico has awakened to the value of close ties with its neighbor and great care is being taken to avoid obstacles in the work of rapprochement. That movement had its start only a few years ago but already appears to be ripening into full bloom.

The newspapers unanimously laud these efforts and public opinion in general seems in accord with them. The press, however, cannot pass up the occasion to remark that the rapprochement has been made possible through a change in policy at Washington which has substituted frank and tolerant good will for a shifting, occult attitude which continually had this country guessing and served as a bar to confidence.

One thing that is especially counted upon to promote understanding between the two nations is President-elect Ortiz Rubio's visit to the United States. The official and private courtesies extended to him there, brought home to the Mexican people the impression that the American government is sincere and disposed to go out of its way to further friendship with Mexico.

"All Quiet" Pays Author.

Berlin (AP).—Erich Maria Remarque, author of "All Quiet on the Western Front," has demonstrated that a writer can become rich on one book. His widely circulated work has brought him 1,500,000 marks of which the government has collected 500,000 marks in taxes. Remarque's net profit, therefore, is 1,000,000 marks or $250,000.

Farming in New York State

(By The Associated Press).

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 25 (AP).—The vision of reforested New York state has aroused keen enthusiasm on the part of farm boys and girls throughout the state, according to J. E. Davis of the New York state college of agriculture at Ithaca. During the past year, 1,020 boys and girls enrolled in the forestry projects carried on in 33 counties by the 4-H clubs planted 1,061,500 trees.

The state conservation department supplied 1,000 trees free of charge to each boy or girl between the ages of 12 and 18 who enrolled in the first year work of the 4-H forestry project. First year members planted 955,000 trees and 65 older members purchased and planted 106,500 trees.

The project is planned on a four-year basis; first, forest planting, second, forest appreciation; third, wood lot improvement; fourth, log scaling and timber estimating. According to Mr. Davis any boy or girl who completes the four year's work should be able to deal with the simple forestry problems which are likely to arise on a farm.

Sheep raising in the vicinity of Rochester, which had nearly died out because of the ravages of sheep-killing dogs, is being revived. Farm bureau officials attribute the revival to the close watch being carried out by paid dog wardens.

A recent survey in Delaware county showed that farmers in that section of the state had developed the poultry industry to the point where a $1,500,000 business was done annually by poultry raisers in the county.

The Mexican bean beetle swept across New York state last year and invaded Massachusetts and Connecticut, according to Rodney Cecil, entomologist of the United States Department of Agriculture who is making a study of this latest invader in cooperation with the Geneva state agricultural experiment station.

In New York state the beetle was found during the past season for the first time in the counties of Seneca, Tompkins, Ulster, Westchester, Putnam and Dutchess. The counties of Tioga, Broome, Chenango, Delaware and Sullivan also are infested. According to Mr. Cecil the beetle is found more or less extensively south of a line drawn east from Buffalo to Geneva, south to Ithaca, east to Sangerties and Red Hook.

Control of the bean beetle is not difficult, Mr. Cecil declares for it succumbs readily to poison sprays, but when it once becomes numerous in a bean-growing territory it will add to the hazards of the crop and inevitably will increase the cost of production because of the control measures required to save the crop.

Pruning, grafting and indoor preparation should constitute the favorite "winter sports" of fruit growers and nurserymen, according to H. B. Tukey, horticulturist at the Geneva state agricultural experiment station.

Olympic Games Flag

The flag used for the Olympic games has an arrangement of five circles on a white or neutral background. The three upper circles, blue, black and red, do not touch, but they are joined by the two lower circles of yellow and green, which in turn do not touch each other. The blue circle represents Europe; the black, Africa; the red, America; the yellow, Asia, and the green, Australasia.

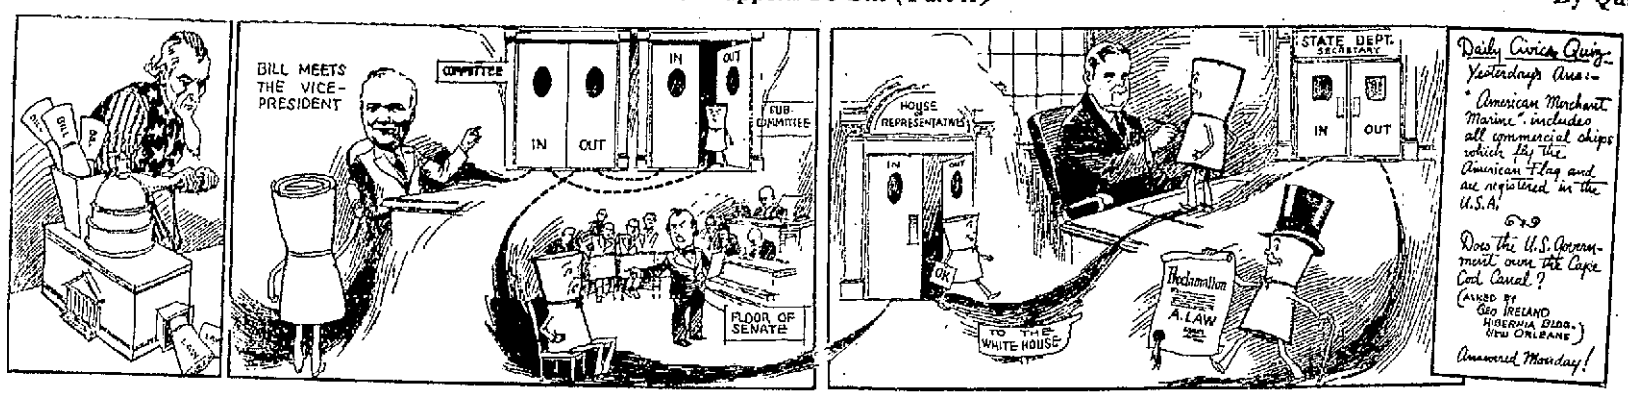
"UNCLE SAM AT YOUR SERVICE"

What Happens To Bill (Part II)

By Quig Stave



(All rights protected by the George Matthew Adams Service—Trade Mark Registered U. S. Patent Office)

Our friend "Bill—H. R. 13," having been approved by the House of Representatives, meets the Vice President, presiding officer of the Senate. The Vice President has Bill's title read to the Senate at two consecutive sessions, after which a Senate committee on his particular class of legislation takes him in hand. Bill finds that there are calendars and sub-committees here, too. He is finally called on the floor of the Senate. Unlike the rules of the House, the regulations of the Senate permit unlimited debate. Bill hears many kind and unkind things about himself. The result is that when Bill is passed by a majority vote of the Senate he discovers that he bears some new amendments that the House has not yet approved. Of course, Bill must return to the House for approval of the changes.

If the House does not agree to the Senate amendments, a conference committee of Representatives and Senators appointed by the Speaker, and the Vice President, make a compromise agreement which must be voted on by both Branches. Bill leaves the Capitol, heading for the White House. He is enrolled on parchment and has been signed by the Speaker and the Vice President. Bill has gone a long way now but he will not become A. Law unless signed by the President of the U. S. A. (The Congress can only overrule a President's "veto" by a "two-thirds vote"). Approved by the President within ten days after arrival at the Executive Office, Bill is filed by the Secretary of State and is officially proclaimed A. Law.

FRANCE ENTERS RACE FOR NEAR EAST TRADE

Beirut, Syria, Jan. 25 (AP).—The improvement of the Beirut harbor is the answer of France to England, Persia, and Iraq and to the development in harbor and railroad facilities throughout the countries that depend upon the eastern Mediterranean for an outlet to Europe.

The French government has granted a loan of $6,000,000 to the Beirut Harbor Company to carry on extension work. The harbor at present is so small that no large ships can anchor.

The extension, which it is expected will be completed in five years, provides for the lengthening of the existing jetty and converting Medawar bay into a protected harbor. Four quays will be constructed to allow the biggut liners to dock.

England plans through the development of the Haifa harbor and the laying of the Haifa-Bagdad railroad, to have an accessible gateway to central Asia. France plans to use the new harbor in her mandated territory for the same purpose.

It is generally believed that construction of Beirut harbor may bring to fruition the long delayed project of the Tripoli-Beirut-Haifa rail line, which in turn would mean the completion of the Calais-Constantinople-Cairo line, linking three continents by one railway track.

There are more people fishing and fewer catching anything than ever before in the history of the world.

Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church, Spring and Hone streets—The Rev. William H. Pretzsch, pastor. The oldest Lutheran church in the city; organized 1849. The third Sunday after Epiphany. 9 a. m., German service. The German speaking public invited. 10 a. m., English Sunday school. All children welcome. 11 a. m., English service. Text for sermon: "Love Your Enemies". There is more enmity among those who claim membership in the churches, than among those who are opposed to churches. The unbelievers have no religion, neither do they profess to love their enemies, yet many of them show a greater measure of neighborliness, consideration, helpfulness, kindliness, fellowship and love, than many who profess to be church-members. A hearty invitation is extended to all who have no church affiliation. All seats are free. Tuesday night at 7 Junior Luther League. Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 week-day Bible school. All children are welcome, strangers especially. Thursday evening from 5 to 8 Circle B of the Ladies' Aid will hold a roast chicken supper in the assembly rooms of the church. The public is most cordially invited to come. Friday afternoon at 3:30 confirmation lessons.

Clinton Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, the Rev. A. A. Vradenburg, pastor. Morning worship at 11. Theme of sermon, "Loyalty." Sabbath school at 10. Church And School Notes

(By The Associated Press)

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 25 (AP).—Works of two members of the faculty of the college of fine arts, Syracuse University, are being exhibited in galleries at Washington and Rochester.

Miss Marjorie Garfield, instructor in the department of interior decoration, has a series of etchings on display in the Corcoran Art Gallery at Washington, while 40 paintings by Professor Carl T. Hawley of the department of drawings are on exhibition in the gallery of Mechanics Institute, Rochester.

Professor Montague Charman of the department of design has been elected a member of the American Water Color Society in recognition of his work.

The Eta Phi fraternity chapters of New York State will meet in Utica, August 30 and 31 and September 1.

Increasing appreciation of the adult educational program of Union College, which consists of lectures broadcast each Friday night from WGY, the General Electric radio station at Schenectady, is indicated in the letters received at the college, according to University officials.

The following lectures will be broadcast during February:

February 7, "Influence of international law in preserving peace," by Dr. W. Leon Godshall, head of the department of political science; February 14, "Influence of public opinion upon foreign policy," by Dr. Godshall; February 21, "The tariff, Part 1," by Harold Robert Enslow, assistant professor of political science; February 28, "The tariff, Part 2," by Mr. Enslow.

Professor Robert S. Hillyer of Harvard University, a widely known poet, will lecture on "The poetry of Emily Dickenson," on February 19 at Union College under the auspices of the Ichabod Spencer Foundation.

The foundation lectures are open to the general public as well as undergraduates and faculty. Increasing attendance of the public has led to the lectures being given in the new memorial chapel which has about three times the seating capacity of the old chapel.

On March 12, Stark Young, editor and dramatic critic of the New Republic, will lecture on "The Theater."

Union College has added to its publications a magazine, "Faculty Papers," said to be an innovation in the field of college publications.

The first number appeared last week and contains authoritative articles by faculty members, intended to interest the intelligent lay reader. The first issue was edited by a faculty committee composed of Edward Everett Hale, Jr., Harold Atkins Larrabee, Charles B. Hurd, Edward S. C. Smith, Charles N. Waldron, Anthony deH. Hoadley and Bertrand M. Walnger.

FRENCH MEDICS ENDORSE "OYSTERS A L'IODINE"

Paris, (AP).—Doctored food is highly approved by eminent French physicians but they give a new meaning to the word "doctored."

Oysters dosed with iodine are the first offering in this new treatment.

Dr. Rene Loubatie of Bordeaux, in a paper presented to the Academy of Medicine by Professor Achard, recommends a daily half dozen "oysters a l'iodine" for two weeks as an ideal method of administering that drug.

Medicated oysters were produced by Dr. Loubatie by dosing the water in which the oysters grew. He found that they absorbed the medicine without any change in flavor and that the iodine spread through the human system in a satisfactory manner.

Consecration of Holy Cross

Spoken", sung to an old Welsh melody and used at the time of the offertory. "Praise My Soul the King of Heaven" was sung after the Mass as the acolytes and ministers of the Mass retired from the sanctuary. The Bishop and his attendants made their departure from the church down the center aisle, the people kneeling as he passed to receive his Episcopal blessing, while the organist played a triumphal march and the church bells pealed out in joy.

The Bishop preached the sermon, stressing the solemnity of such a service, and telling of its meaning when a building is given to the worship of God. His arch-priest was the Rev. John S. Baldwin, O. H. C., and his deacons or honor were the Rev. Frank Simmonds, rector of Grace Church, White Plains, New York, and the Rev. Harrison Rockwell, rector of All Saints' Church, New York city. The rector of Holy Cross, the Rev. Gregory Mabry, was celebrant, the deacon being the Rev. Raymond C. Hornby, curate of Holy Cross, and the subdeacon Eugene A. Chilson. A large number of clergy of the New York and Albany dioceses were in attendance. The offering gathered at the service was presented to the Bishop for the building fund of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

Memorial Altars Blessed.

Most of the appointments of worship used in the church were blessed at the time of their installation, but the two beautiful shrine altars dedicated to the Blessed Virgin Mary and to the Sacred Heart of Jesus awaited the coming of Bishop Manning. Both are the work of the famous artist, Angelo Lualdi of Florence, Italy. In general design they are the same, though varying greatly in detail. One stands against the south wall of the building, in the nave of the church; the other stands on the north side. They are a part of the decoration of the whole church, acting as architectural termint for the high altar. Both are richly carved, much of it in pierced work, and polychromed. The altar of the Sacred Heart is beautifully carved, with shields, symbols and angels, the symbols being appropriate to the Sacred Heart. The reredos is carved with folded linen panels and canopy of roses and lilies. In the niche stands a beautiful statue of the Jesus Christ as the King of Love. Mr. Lualdi has caught in his face all that is meant by the Sacred Heart: love, compassion, understanding, strength. This altar is a memorial to the late Sophie Clay Smith and Christine Gracmine Russell, and was given by their family. The Shrine of Our Lady is carved and decorated with symbols appropriate to the Blessed Virgin and holds a most beautiful statue of the Virgin and Holy Child. The great simplicity, yet rich detail display Lualdi's work at its best. This shrine was erected by the family of the late Frederick William Diehl in his memory. The work is harmonious with all the other furnishings and appointments of Holy Cross.

A Church of Great Interest.

The beauty of the interior of Holy Cross Church is perhaps better known to the outside world than to the general public of Kingston. Through the tourist season it is a shrine to which a continuous stream of visitors find their way, both because of its great devotional atmosphere and the number of beautiful objects of art which it contains. The high altar which was dedicated five years ago by the Rt. Rev. Arthur Selden Lloyd, Suffragan Bishop of New York, is known throughout America as one of the most beautiful in the country. Ecclesiastical and art magazines often refer to it. It is a memorial to the late Edith Ellison Van Wagenen. It is the work of Lualdi, as are the appointments, the crucifix and six office lights. The crucifix is a memorial to the late John Vreeland Schoonmaker and Emma Sahler Schoonmaker; the six office lights are memorials to George Valentine Burgevin, Martin Vanderburgh Burgevin, Mary Jane DuBois, Emma Wenderbaum Schrieber, Harriet Theresa Van Duzen Vosburgh, and George W. Jarvis. The great standard lights are in memory of Allan Smith, as are the seven sanctuary lamps, made in Luca, Italy. The Blessed Sacrament lamp is the beautiful handiwork and gift of Mrs. George DeForest Smith. The old Italian priest's seat and the sedilia and prieldieux are thankofferings for prayers answered, and are the gift of many unknown persons who have prayed in Holy Cross. The communion rails and all other furnishings were made by the Angelo Lualdi, Inc., Studios at Cambridge, Mass., after designs by Lualdi. The sanctuary gates are a thankoffering for recovery from serious illness. They are rare pieces of wrought-iron work, made some five hundred years ago, and come to Holy Cross from a church in Sienna. The pulpit crucifix is a thankoffering from Miss Emily Burnett. The Magnificent Hanging Rood, with the statues of Our Lady and St. John, the work of Lualdi, was given by the late Mary H. S. Ingraham. The fleche over the Font, also a work of Lualdi, is a memorial to Elizabeth Forde Groves. The Chapel of St. Joseph was decorated by a Sister of the Order of St. Anne and contains a beautiful painting of the Annunciation which once hung in the Church of the Holy Spirit, Kingston. The vestments and other appointments of worship, too numerous to mention, are either very fine old things brought from Europe or are of the very best of modern materials and workmanship.

The Plant.

The parish plant also contains a large parish house with auditorium, four large guild rooms, kitchen and dining room, and conveniences. Handsome new sacristies, with every convenience for their use were given to the parish last autumn and were but recently completed. A frame rectory stands to the south of the church. Some of the most notable community work has been done in Holy Cross Parish House which has been done in America since its completion in 1899. It was largely the gift of the late Mrs. Ezra Fitch, William B. Fitch and Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Hasbrouck Fitch. It was rebuilt and modernized in 1921 by the gifts of all the parish. It has been said that all of young Kingston has played there since its building. The church building still lacks the facade and tower of the original design. When those additions are made the church will on its exterior possess something of the beauty of its interior. It is of native Ulster county blue stone and brick.

Work of a Devoted Priest.

When the collects, or special prayers, were read in the Mass, all of deceased parishioners and the late Father Hall were commemorated, and to the congregation it seemed most fitting that there should have been mention made of them, for Holy Cross is the work of many prayers and hands, but most particularly of the late Father Charles Mercer Hall, for eighteen years the rector. Though founded several years before Father Hall came to take charge of the work, yet the parish is his memorial, for he did a work which made him beloved in the community almost beyond any other clergyman who has ever labored in Kingston. And his work won for him an admiration extending throughout the Episcopal Church. It was Father Hall who gathered the congregation and constructed the buildings. There have been but two rectors beside him, the Rev. J. Morris Coerr, 1912-1916; and the present incumbent who began his tenure ten years ago, and under whom the traditions created by Father Hall have been carried on.

Luncheon to Bishop and Visitors.

Following the service this morning Bishop Manning and the visitors were entertained at a luncheon given by the vestry in the parish house.

Fahrenheit First

Fahrenheit introduced his mercury thermometer in 1714. In 1742 Celsius proposed a Centigrade scale, the temperature of melting ice being 100 and that of boiling water being 0. Christen, working independently, proposed, in 1743, a Centigrade scale similar to that of Celsius, but inverted, and this is the one now generally used.

Old Bibles on Exhibition

Marking the fourth centenary of the birth of Jasper Karoli, who was first to translate the Bible into Hungarian, Protestants of Transylvania gathered an exhibition of old Bibles. The most ancient was a Karoli edition of 1592.

Carnera, Italian Giant, Victor In First Round

Displays Amazing Speed and Agility for His Tremendous Size—Peterson Floored Four Times—Larry Johnson Scores 15th Successive Knockout.

New York, Jan. 24 (AP).—Whatever else may be said about the American debut of Primo Carnera, biggest of all the heavyweights, it ranks distinctly as the greatest social and artistic success of the winter, regardless of what happens beneath the palms of Miami.

Without a hitch in any feature of the arrangements, the ballyhoo or his own showmanship, the 270-pound Italian giant knocked out Big Boy Peterson in exactly one minute and ten seconds of the main act in Madison Square Garden last evening. An appreciative capacity crowd of 18,000 roared like a lot of small boys at a circus as the big, barrel-chested Carnera handled the blonde Scandinavian as though his 209 pounds were a mere featherweight.

Carnera displayed amazing speed and agility for his tremendous size. He also exhibited a wide range of punches in the brief period of action, but he could not fail to look impressive against an opponent who was strictly on the receiving end from the outset. Peterson was knocked down four times for counts of three, eight, four and ten from an assortment of left hooks and right uppercuts. He took the final count while on his haunches, shaking his head like a shaggy dog and pawing at his chin.

He was lugged to his corner without giving any indication he knew exactly what had happened. Big Boy remained seated for fully three minutes after the fight under the frenzied ministrations of his seconds.

At no moment of the proceeding did Peterson make any menacing gestures toward his huge, dark-haired opponent. Twice Big Boy waved his left hand in the general direction of Carnera, but he was back pedalling so fast at the time that it took only a light tap on the side of the head to send him sprawling to the floor for the first time. Thereafter, Peterson spent most of his time on the floor, blinking. All told he spent 25 of the 70 seconds that the "fight" lasted reclining on the canvas in a variety of poses.

To sum up the Carnera case for the moment, one of the keenest of boxing men remarked: "He looked very good, very fast but of course—I would like to see him in there with a fighter."

As far as actual fighting was concerned, the customers got a much better run for the money in the semi-final in which Larry Johnson, crack Chicago negro light-heavyweight, scored his 15th successive knockout at the expense of Fred Lenhart, Spokane, Wash., a rough and ready customer, after two minutes, five seconds of the seventh round of what was to have been a ten-round bout.

Add Warren of Chapel Hill, N. C., gave Ora Buck Weaver, Medicine Lodge, Kans., heavyweight, a thorough trouncing in the first ten rounder.

Phil Scott, British heavyweight, who is to meet Jack Sharkey at Miami, Fla., February 27, was introduced from the ring just before the big fight, and got a loud chorus of boos for his pains. The customers evidently remembered Scott's last previous appearance at the Garden when he won on a much-disputed foul from Otto Von Porat.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

(By The Associated Press.)

New York—Primo Carnera, Italy, knocked out Big Boy Peterson, Minneapolis (1). Larry Johnson, Chicago, knocked out Fred Lenhart, Spokane, Wash. (7).

Chicago—Jackie Fields, World Champion, outpointed Vince Dundee, Baltimore (10) (non-title). Tony Herrera, Fort Worth, Texas, outpointed Irish Jackie Pilkington, New York (8).

Boston—Jimmy Maloney, Boston, knocked out Armand Emmanuel, Los Angeles (2).

Toronto—Willie Davies, Charlerol, Pa., outpointed Steve Rocco, Toronto (10).

Buffalo—Jimmy Goodrich, Buffalo, outpointed Joe Trippe, Rochester (10).

La Crosse, Wis.—Jimmy Gibbons, St. Paul, knocked out Mitz Minikel, Milwaukee (2).

San Francisco—Dave Shade, New York, outpointed Joe Roche, San Francisco (10).

Y. M. C. A. Faces W. P.'s Tonight

The United Presbyterian quintet of Schenectady will invade the Y. M. C. A. court tonight as opponents of the "Y" representatives, who are now even with that five as the result of two games played last season.

Playing on the local court last year the Presbyterians scored a 26-21 win over the Y. M. C. A. representatives, who later went to Schenectady and evened matters with their rivals. So tonight's tilt, which will be the "rubber", should prove interesting, it is thought.

At 7:30 there will be a preliminary game between the Shooting Stars of this city and the Junior Champions of Newburgh. It will be immediately followed by the feature attraction.

Highland Trims Roosa Five

In an overtime session Friday night at Smith's Hall, Highland, the Hose Company Five of that place defeated the Roosa Furniture Five of Beacon in a close game that had to be decided by an extra five-minute period. The score was 38-30.

At the end of the regulation time the score was deadlocked at 27. Maury McDermott went into the game at that stage and contributed four of Highland's 8-point winning margin. Mickey Husta of this city did not play with the firemen owing to illness.

Jimmy Merritt, was the leading scorer of the game. He contributed 18 points to Highland's cause. Whitman and Nolan with 11 each did Beacon's best shooting.

The Highland team will play at Monticello tonight.

The score:

Highland	F.G.	F.P.	T.P.

CITY BOWLING LEAGUE CONTESTS MONDAY NIGHT

City Bowling League contests will be rolled Monday night as follows:

Crescents, formerly the Y. M. C. A., vs. Livingstons at Immanuel alleys.

St. Peter's vs. Lyceum at St. Peter's alleys.

Immanuels vs. Colonials at Y. M. C. A.

The New England baseball league plans to give aspiring boys who wish to play professional baseball a helping hand. Each club will carry two players who are without previous experience in organized baseball.

Harvey Rockburn of the Detroit Hockey club is the smallest defense player in the National Professional league, standing less than 5 feet 6 inches high. Leo Bourgault of the New York Rangers is only a trifle taller.

Ice Hurdle on Trail of the Puck

Arthur Williams, right wing of the Amherst college hockey team, stages a sensational leap over George Pfaff, goalkeeper of the Speculator team, in an exciting match on the rink. The referee is Denton Mullen. Crowds of winter sports enthusiasts from all parts of the country enjoy the skating and skiing, in addition to watching the collegiate competition.

Roamers Meet Spinny's Tonight

The Roamers, minus the presence of Jimmy Merritt, star forward of the Highland Hose Company team, who was scheduled to reinforce their attack, will invade Pythian Hall, Port Ewen, tonight, in an attempt to carry out their threat to defeat Spinny's Radio Five.

All set to give the Roamers plenty of trouble from the start, Spinny's intend to conduct a steady, effective attack that will take a big toll from their opponents. The Roamers have their game all figured out and if their plans are properly carried out the Radio Men will get plenty of opposition, Tony Gentile, manager of the ... quintet, believes.

Many are expected to witness the game, which will be preceded by ... the between the Port Ewen Men's Club and the Irish-Americans of this city. The teams are now deadlocked after two battles, so tonight's game will decide the superior quintet. The preliminary will go on at 7:30, and will be followed by the feature attraction. Dancing with music by the Light Revelers will be the last order on the evening's program.

Sport Notes

Soccer has been abandoned by the University of Iowa after a two-year revival.

Georgia Tech and Alabama have broken football relations. Tech will play Penn in Philadelphia next year.

Karl Wildermuth, Long Island sprinter, is figured to be one of the big winners in the indoor track season

Johnny Mostil, White Sox center fielder, has been released outright to the Toledo club of the American association.

Twelve players represent a football team at colleges and universities in Canada. The twelfth man is called "flyingwing."

University of Kansas football eleven in 1930 will have a captain for each game to be appointed by the head football coach.

Fairy Story—"I cannot tell a lie," said the young halfback, Washington to his college coach. "At one time I bowled 22 weeks for a $2.50 prize."

Two northwestern Minnesota county fairs last summer decided to return to horse racing instead of the automobile races, which have been staged for years.

One of Knute Rockne's celebrated football coaching courses for grid mentors will be held at Oregon State college, Corvallis, Ore., in the summer of 1930.

The late John E. Madden earned sufficient as a boxer and a foot runner in his youth to give him a start on the road that made him wealthy and famous—the turf.

The 1930 Pacific Coast league baseball season will extend over a period of 28 weeks, starting two weeks earlier than usual and continuing beyond the world series.

Three of the East's leading football stars have been elected captains of their teams next year—Hart of Colgate, Gentle of Penn, and Nemecek of New York university.

Franco Georgetti, Italian six-day bicycle racer, is well on the way to creating the greatest record of any competitor in this sport. He has already won nine of the marathon events.

Karl Keffer, professional at the Royal Ottawa Golf club for the past 20 years, with the exception of the time he spent overseas, has been elected an honorary member of the club

Riding a horse to two victories on the same day has been accomplished twice by Winnie O'Connor, the only jockey to boast that achievement. He did it on Sidney Lucas in 1899 and Ogden in 1901.

Veteran Pitcher Closes His Long Diamond Career

Harry Krause, forty-one years old, who has been southpawing his way to fame in organized baseball, both major and minor, for 21 years, has been given his unconditional release by the Mission club of the Pacific Coast league. Krause said after announcement of his release was made that he never expects to pitch again but hopes to find a position somewhere as coach.

Krause became famous when he won 10 straight games for the Philadelphia Athletics in 1909, his first year in the majors. He pitched three years for Connie Mack and finished the 1912 season with Toledo of the American association. Then he was with Portland for three years, nine years with Oakland and has been there since 1927.

Krause finished his first year with the Missions near the top of the successful pitcher list; in 1928 he won 15 and lost 10; but last year the going was tough and he won seven and lost nine.

Honor Bezdek Again

Two Barrels of Oysters Buy Release of Pitcher

The Dallas baseball club sold one of its pitchers for two barrels of oysters.

"Oyster Joe" Martina, former Washington Nat pitcher and old-time Texas and Southern leaguer, was offered his release for a barrel of oysters. Dallas sports writers, however, said Joe was worth two barrels.

So the two barrels arrived in Dallas from Martina's oyster house in New Orleans and his release was forwarded.

The sports writers got one barrel.

Colonel Hammond Gives Hockey Trophy to Team

Colonel Hammond, owner of the New York Rangers, of the National Hockey league and a West Point graduate, has donated a cup valued at $675 for a game to be played annually between the hockey teams of the Kent school, of Kent, Conn., and the Morristown prep school, of Morristown, N. J.

The receipts of the game are to provide scholarships for English boys at Kent school.

Game for Missouri

Although Washington university and the University of Missouri only signed a one-year football contract last year, the elevens of the state's two largest schools undoubtedly will meet again next year. Arthur Ellers, business manager of athletics at Washington university, asserted that while no negotiations had been started for a game in 1930, he soon would arrange for the 1930 football date.

Sport Slants

By Alan J. Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

Additional light on the pugilistic past of baseball players is contributed by Bert Lowry. Writing from his present observation post on the Stockton (Cal.) Record, Lowry says:

"Back in the days when I was sports editor of the Oakland Tribune there was a boy getting by in great shape in the four-round game here (before he got 10-round fights) and who fought several of the best boys in his class. He was Eddie Mensor, who played several seasons in the Pacific Coast League and then went up to the Pittsburgh Pirates. Your archives may give a little dope on Mensor."

Boxer-ballplayer Mensor was good enough to stick with the Pirates for three seasons, 1912 to 1914, but his record indicates he may have been a harder hitter in the ring than on the diamond.

His best mark was .263 for 39 games in 1912, a fairly respectable average in those days, before the advent of the lively ball. Mensor was released to Columbus of the American Association in 1915 but the trail from there on is lost.

It seems that Art Shires' first fight, quite naturally, was in his home town of Italy, Texas. And, as Hoff in the St. Paul Dispatch relates it:

Art and his friends were storming down the street amusing themselves by shooting Roman candles at passers-by. One big, tough egg from a neighboring town announced publicly that any kid that pointed one of those things at him would be knocked silly.

"Of course," said Art, "I've never been a guy to go out of my way for a fight but I could always take care of myself, see—so I goes up to this mug and fires the candle right at him. Well, the next day when we appeared before the mayor to answer charges, that guy looked like a freight train had hit him."

Of considerable interest are the reflections of Schubert Dyche, coach of the Montana State Bobcats, following the Eastern tour in which his Rocky Mountain basketball champions won four out of seven from some of the best teams in the country.

"Hyatt (of Pittsburgh) is a marvel," writes Dyche. "He is more effective than Cat Thompson, (Montana ace) and that is hard to admit. He is without question the greatest forward I have ever seen—or imagined. Loyola of Chicago was the greatest team we met on our trip. They are unbeatable by a team that cannot get the tipoff. Charles Murphy of Loyola (center) outjumped Frank Ward and was the best center we met. Stretch Murphy of Purdue is unsteady and this makes Purdue an in-and-out team. Butler has a great team but Loyola may beat them because Loyola plays a coldly scientific game—the professional type of basketball. Pitt has Hyatt, Butler has the men and the mechanics and, of course, we miss Brick Breeden."

Breeden was a guard on three previous championship Montana State teams, one of the greatest defense men ever developed in Rocky Mountain basketball.

The Bobcats, advises the expert Mr. F. H. Frawley from his observation post for The Associated Press in Denver, would like to take on the Eastern or Middle Western basketball champions in a post-season series. This is on the assumption Montana State repeats in the Rockies, where Brigham Young, coached by "Ott" Romney, and the Utah Aggies may offer formidable opposition.

Kingston Wins 3d DUSO Game From Port Jervis

Port Team Bows to Maroon and White for Second Time This Season, Giving Kingstonians a Trio of DUSO Wins—Liberty Here Next Friday.

Kingston High School's varsity quintet scored its third consecutive DUSO League victory Friday night at the local school gym by defeating Port Jervis, 31-17. The win was Kingston's second over the Black and Red club, Ellenville being the other school to fall before the expert shooting of the Maroon and White team.

Coach Kias's men, who are on a straight path for the DUSO League championship, had a scare thrown into them in the third quarter. Birmingham got loose and before the Maroon and White could surround him with their defense he tossed in most of the shots that gave him his total of 13 points, the highest individual score of the game.

The work of this dashing left forward boosted Port's meagre tally of six points, which it had in comparison to Kingston's 15 at half time, to a sum that came within five markers of tying the Maroon and White's aggregate. At the end of the third quarter the score was: Kingston, 18; Port Jervis, 13.

The local team tightened on its defense and shot more accurately in the third quarter during which it built up its lead and overcame Port Jervis by the big majority of 31-17.

Kingston's next DUSO game will be with Liberty on Friday, January 31, in Kingston High School gym.

Sore Throats and Coughs

Quickly Relieved by this Safe Prescription

Here's a doctor's prescription that is really throat insurance. Sore or irritated throats are relieved and soothed almost instantly with the very first swallow. About 90% of all coughs are caused by an irritated throat; consequently for most coughs too there is nothing better than this famous prescription—it goes direct to the internal cause. It is put up under the name Thoxine and is guaranteed to stop coughs and relieve sore throats in 15 minutes or your money will be refunded. Singers and speakers find Thoxine very valuable.

The remarkable thing about Thoxine is that while it relieves almost instantly, it contains nothing harmful, is pleasant tasting and safe for the whole family. Ask for Thoxine 35c., 60c., and $1.00 bottles. Sold by Kingston Central Pharmacy and all other good drug stores.

Joan Bennett

Dainty Joan Bennett of the "talkies," is the youngest of three sisters. She was born at the Palisades, New Jersey. Like her sisters, Constance and Barbara, she turned to films. Her slender and blonde beauty attracted the attention of motion picture executives, resulting in a contract for her at Hollywood. She was popular as leading lady in the all-talking film "Broadway Vagabond."

For Meditation

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

WHY WE WORK

THE motive with which we discharge our daily duties is either love or money. The choice we make between these two motives determines our happiness and contentment. In his Modern Painters, John Ruskin argues at length against the monetary motive. He tells us that nothing ever endures that was created for the mere purpose of receiving a fee for services rendered. Is he not right? Could any person imagine Saint-Gaudens creating the statue of Lincoln for the sake of the price the city of Chicago was willing to pay him for his work? Something metallic creeps into a painting when it is done for the sake of financial remuneration. That wonderful "something" that draws an audience to a singer, and which is the secret of success, is lost the moment the evening's fee is a more important consideration than the self-expression of the artist, which love for his work makes possible. A successful business man recently remarked that he went to his office in the same spirit as he would go to a party. With real pleasure and anticipation he discharged his daily responsibilities. He thought of the annual financial returns as rewards for services faithfully rendered and not as pay for work done. The millions who are driven to drab toil for a mere existence are worse than slaves.

L. A. Barrett.

The spirit of love for one's work occasionally demands the great sacrifice. The air mail route from Cleveland to New York is reported to be extremely dangerous. In fact it is the most dangerous of all the mail routes in the country. During the ten years it has been in operation one pilot lost his life each year. The very interesting thing is that the moment a place thus becomes vacant, another pilot offers his services. Why does he do it? For the sake of the monthly wage? Scarcely would so small a compensation urge one to a task involving tremendous risks. No. He is urged on by the love of adventure. He loves his work.

Why do we work? It must be a very humdrum and monotonous world to any person who works for wages alone. Such a motive sacrifices the spirit which brings true success. Failure is most likely to be the result of such efforts. If we work for the love of it, we are actuated by a motive which assures us happiness and contentment. Success is bound to crown the efforts of all whose work is motivated just for the love of it.

Carlsbad, N. M.—A painted grotto, colorful as an Indian blanket has just been found in the Guadalupe mountains, New Mexico. A race, extinct 40 centuries ago, used this huge niche in the canyon wall for a living room.

In the half-light were discerned a strange medley of paintings—red, yellow, white, black—along the wall for 80 feet. Both the side and a portion of the ceiling are covered.

A 40-foot serpent was outlined in a series of small white triangles stretched horizontally, other large snakes, in solid yellow, run from floor to ceiling. Paintings of other similar reptiles appear to have been started, but left unfinished.

Flat blocks of rocks, the size of a billiard table, lie along the floor; corn was ground on these.

Paris to Name Street for Ambassador Herrick

Paris.—"To recall to future generations the gratitude they owe America's great ambassador," a new street in Paris is soon to be named Herrick. Largest English Lifeboat to Aid Channel Planes

Hampton-on-Thames, England.—England's new lifeboat, considered the largest in the world, which was recently launched here is now stationed at Dover to assist Channel planes. The lifeboat is the first specifically adapted to help airplanes coming down at sea. The craft has a speed of about 18 knots.

Guatemalan In U. S. Aims At Non-Stop Flight Home

Washington (AP).—A young Guatemalan whose grand passion is science and aviation wishes to show the world that a non-stop airplane trip from New York to Guatemala is both safe and practical.

He is William F. Samayoa, 24-year-old graduate of Catholic University here, who expects to take off from Long Island fields some time in the spring, alone in a small biplane.

With the double purpose of demonstrating the practicability of refueling in the air on long distance flights and stimulating aviation interest in his native country, Samayoa says that he has been assured financial support.

It is the theory of this intense, dark-haired Latin, who came to the United States about ten years ago, that most of the mishaps of long distance flights on and shortly after the take-off have been due to planes too heavily loaded to stay aloft.

Before he leaves New York on his expected 2,400 mile journey, he is to practice refueling in the air.

Every precaution will be taken against mishaps. In addition to safeguarding the plane at the take-off, he will equip it with floats. Departing about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, he plans to fly over the waters fringing the Atlantic coast to Miami, where he will refuel in the air, if necessary.

From Miami his route lies over Key West, Havana, along the Yucatan coast and down to Guatemala City by way of Belize Honduras. He expects to land in Lake Amatitlan, estate of his father near Guatemala City.

He will wear a parachute, but will carry no special instruments in the plane. The coast line will be his guide, and he expects to have moonlight at night.

William F. Samayoa (above), Guatemalan, plans to make a non-stop flight from New York to Guatemala in the spring to prove the practicability of the trip.

Reduction in Price Of Whippet Cars

The George J. Schryver Motor Car Company of North Front street, local agents for the Whippet line of automobiles, now is offering the lowest priced four door sedan built in America. A recent reduction in price of Whippet cars has been announced by L. A. Miller, president of Willys-Overland, Inc., at Toledo, Ohio. This price reduction on all 1930 Whippet four cylinder models ranges from $45 to $50. The reductions in price bring the four cylinder chassis down to $360 and the four door sedan price is but $585. Several models are offered on the four cylinder chassis including DeLuxe sedan at $645, coach at $525, four passenger coupe at $555, two passenger coupe at $525, college roadster, $545, roadster and touring car at $475.

This significant move by Willys-Overland makes the Whippet the lowest priced of all four door sedans built in America, and, is particularly important in indicating the trend toward greater economy benefits to motor car purchasers in the low price car range.

It indicates the recognition by leading manufacturers of the fact that economy and thrift will be considered as never before by motor car purchasers this year, and gives a new importance to the four cylinder car.

FRENCH PRESIDENT DOES DAILY DOZEN BY DAWN'S LIGHT

Paris (AP)—While the milkman rattles his cans before dawn at the back door of the French White House, Gaston Doumergue, President of France, trots up and down a long, airy hall in his pajamas.

The president, according to reports that drift down the backstairs, takes his daily dozen shortly after 5 o'clock in the morning. Those who have seen him at it, assert that he usually wears a blue and white striped costume and that he does an excellent job of exercising.

The president is approaching his 67th birthday, but he shows no sign of old age. He is still famous for the smile that took him from the Chamber of Deputies to a seven-year term in the Elysee palace. His "time" will be up a year from next June.

Besides the running exercise the president does bending and walks on his toes, stiff-legged. Then he gets down on all fours and paddles around, making a good quarter hour of hard physical work to start the day.

The walking and running were prescribed for the chief of state because much of his duty is attendance at ceremonies, inspecting institutions and receiving delegations, all requiring him to be on his feet, smiling and alert, sometimes for hours at a time.

CHINA LEARNS RICHES SEIZED BY JAPANESE.

Hongkong, Jan. 25 (AP).—The Chinese have just begun to comprehend that Japanese interests have stolen a march on them by exploiting rich phosphate deposits on the Paracels, a group of reefs and islets in the Chinese sea 170 miles southwest of this port.

The group belongs to China, but it is far out of the regular track of ships and has been used hitherto only as a source of supply for the bird nests that go into Chinese soup and as a base for small scale fishing. The isles are barren and waterless.

But they have for ages been the sanctuary of millions of sea birds, and through the years there has grown upon them thick deposits of phosphates. Some say these beds are rich enough to pay off the Chinese national debt.

At any rate, this country has suddenly learned that the Japanese have forestalled China again. It is reported that a settlement has sprung up with water tanks and trolley rails running to the water front, where one or two English steamers are always loading at crude wharves and warehouses.

Just how many hundred thousand tons of the phosphate have already gone to the land of the cherry blossom only the Japanese themselves know.

Immense Granite Block

The largest single block of granite in the world is considered to be Pompey's pillar, in Alexandria. The monument was erected in 297 A. D. and rises 88 feet, and is 9 feet in diameter, weighing 246 tons.

Congress Stirred To High Pitch As Wet-Dry Dispute Gains Force

JOHN CHARLES LINTHICUM

LOUIS C. CRAMTON

JOHN J. BLAINE

Representative Linthicum, Maryland, has been selected general of the House of Representatives wet bloc in a new campaign against prohibition. Representative Cramton, Michigan, is an outstanding dry leader. Senator Blaine, Wisconsin, has introduced a resolution to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment.

By L. A. BROPHY,
(AP Feature Service Writer.)

Washington (AP).—Prohibition is the big show in the second session of the seventy-first Congress.

A resistless tide of discussion of the Eighteenth Amendment, and its supporting legislation, early engulfed the session.

Proposals for important changes in the status of prohibition followed oratory; new alignments of wet and dry groups have been made, and the topic now seems to face legislative attention unparalled in its troublesome life span of 10 years.

Like lifeless marionettes, House and Senate leaders for and against a dry United States have bobbed up to speak their minds in never-ending fashion since Congress convened in December.

One of the significant developments was the determination of House wets to organize for "constant, daily attention" in their cause.

Generalship first was offered to James M. Beck of Pennsylvania, former solicitor general of the United States, and while he refused, an accompanying statement flayed prohibition.

The mantle then fell on John Charles Linthicum of Maryland, who has been chairman of the committee for modification of the Volstead Act (unofficial), a band of wet crusaders in the House.

Just a little austere and quiet of manner, the Maryland member has spoken in favor of government control of liquor, perhaps under a system patterned after the Quebec method.

Linthicum, in the past, has gone about his task unobtrusively. In the vehement wing of the House forces against prohibition are Representatives Fiorello H. La Guardia of New York and John C. Schafer of Wisconsin.

Louis C. Cramton of Michigan and John G. Cooper of Ohio, where the Anti-Saloon League was born and bred, are outstanding dry leaders.

Over in the other wing, Senator John J. Blaine of Wisconsin has sponsored a resolution to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment.

And the discussion goes 'round and 'round, seemingly gathering momentum right along, as proposals and oratory speed it.

SEATS FOR MID-SUMMER PASSION PLAY SCARCE.

Oberammergau, Jan. 25 (AP).—Americans who have not reserved or bought seats for the 1930 Passion play will in all likelihood find themselves out of luck if they now try to book for July or August. They can still gets seats for May, June or September.

The 32 regular performances scheduled between May 11 and September 28 are expected to be sufficient to take care of the tourist demand. Under no circumstances will the period of the plays be extended beyond September 28, nor will additional regular performances be inserted in the schedule.

As in previous years, a series of extraordinary performances will be given for the special benefit of the population around Oberammergau. No advance notice about these is given. The decision to present them is reached by the administration only a few days ahead.

BIG RUSH OVERWHELMS PORTUGUESE PAWN SHOPS

Lisbon (AP).—Business this year was so good for pawnbrokers that many of them had to put up their shutters and take an enforced holiday.

Dear money, adverse trade, stock market losses, and high cost of living were responsible for penury in the middle classes.

Pawnshops are choking with articles ranging from old shoes to bicycles and jewelry. Pawnbrokers exhausted their funds and have no more room to store the objects confided to them.

How I Spent My Days At The White House

By Mrs. Calvin Coolidge.
ARTICLE 3.

"I am one of fifteen women belonging to the same college fraternity who have kept in circulation a round robin letter since the summer of 1915...In August of 1926, this round robin was reported missing... Each member was asked to make a diligent search...Unable to locate it in my own files, I asked the Secret Service to have a look in theirs, and sure enough, there was the bird, looking very much bedraggled, duly numbered in blue and marked, 'Seemingly silly letters'."

All my life I have done my best work in the early morning hours. As a schoolgirl with home work to be prepared, I can remember saying that I could do more work in half an hour before breakfast than in an hour after supepr. Perhaps this is a New England trait.

After the President left the house in the morning to begin his work for the day, I busied myself with various household duties, often to the accompaniment of music from the radio or phonograph, in which my canaries joined. Some flowers were always sent up to me from the flower room in the west wing, and these I arranged in vases or bowls about my own room and the west sitting room. Flowers in the other rooms were arranged by the man in whose care the grounds and gardens of the White House were placed.

The west sitting-room might have been called the general sitting-room, for there we gathered before luncheon and dinner were announced and there were the newspapers and magazines on a long table at one side. Family pictures hung on the walls and comfortable overstuffed chairs and sofas full of honorable years were conveniently placed about the room.

My secretary arrived at nine o'clock and opened and sorted the mail. It was easily classified and fell under the following general heads: Personal, requests to be received, requests for donations and articles for Bazaars, requests for photographs and autographs, requests for assistance of various sorts, invitations to be present at meetings or ceremonies of one kind or another, and letters from persons of unsound mind which were turned over to the Secret Service.

I must tell the story of one letter which went into the files. I am one of fifteen women belonging to the same college fraternity who have kept in circulation a round robin letter since the summer of 1915, when our biennial convention was held in Berkeley, California. It makes the rounds quite regularly once in three months and travels from coast to coast. Anyone who has ever seen a round robin knows what it looks like, for they all have the same general appearance. Each contributor writes on paper of different size or color, some letters are written by hand, others are typewritten, and altogether they present a strange appearance to one unaccustomed to them. In August of 1926, this round robin was reported missing for the first time, and inquiries were sent out. Each member was asked to make diligent search for the lost letter. Not until all the others had reported did they appeal to me. Unable to locate it in my own files, I asked the Secret Service to have a look in theirs and, sure enough, there was the bird, looking very much bedraggled, duly numbered in blue and marked "Seemingly silly letters"—and all written by college graduates of some years' standing!

Personal letters I took charge of and I answered many of them myself. A letter in my handwriting will never have any commercial value—they are too numerous. A large portion of the other letters were answered by my secretary, sometimes after consultation with me, often not.

As a usual thing I took a brisk walk during the forenoon. One of my favorite walks was around the reflecting basin in front of the Lincoln Memorial, but this walk I enjoyed most in the late afternoon, when the sun was setting over Arlington and a rose-lavender haze hung over the river.

Sometimes my walk took me to the shopping district and I visited some of the stores to make personal selection of various articles of which I stood in need. One such visit, made soon after my husband became President, had as its objective the purchase of a hat. My secretary accompanied me. We entered the shop and a young saleswoman came forward to inquire as to our wishes. I described such a hat as I required and she brought two or three from one of the cases. Putting them down on the table before me, she looked at me closely and said: "My, but you look like Mrs. Coolidge!" I smiled pleasantly but uninterestedly. She brought two or three more hats and put them down. "Did anyone ever tell you before that you look like Mrs. Coolidge?" she asked. "Yes," I replied simply, with never a smile. I made my selection and prepared to depart, signaling my secretary to give her the address, and we all had a little laugh together.

Delegations, groups and some individuals were given appointments to be received at twelve noon, and if arrangements had been made for a picture, the party assembled at the foot of one of the flights of stone steps leading down from the south portico to the flagging below. The iron railing, with its entwining Virginia creeper made an ever-pleasing background, and at times a fragrant one as well.

When the social season was in full swing, I received at tea twice a week, usually on Mondays and Fridays. These groups were limited to twenty-five preferably, to thirty at the outside, and were made up of those who had made requests to be received. This seemed a strange custom to me when I first went to Washington, but when explained to me, I could see that it had been established wisely. It is obvious that when we wish to call upon the wife of the President we cannot go up and ring the front door bell and ask if the First Lady is in. We therefore leave a note written either to her personally or to her secretary, asking if we may have the honor of being received. An engraved card is then sent to us stating the day and hour at which we may call. If we are visiting in Washington and wish to call upon the Mistress of the White House, it is proper to leave cards at the door, together with a note asking whether we may be received. If we are strangers and unknown to the President's wife, we must ask our hostess or some friend to make the request for us.

I received in the Red parlor, with an aide making the introductions and a friend pouring out tea at a table in one corner. Sometimes I had smaller groups of twelve or fifteen, and then I had a low table placed opposite the open fire and, after receiving my guests, sat down and poured their tea.

In order to show that upsets occur in a Presidential household as well as in any other, I shall relate the story of two. At intervals the wives of the members of the President's Cabinet came to have tea with me. I usually asked them to come to the library on the second floor. This room is directly over the Blue Room and is of the same size and shape. Upon the occasion of which I write, we were busily talking over all our cups of tea when I noticed one of the ladies tucking her tea napkin into her bag. I made a mental note that I would tell her before she left, in order to spare her the embarrassment of finding it after she reached home.

A few minutes later, the lady with the bag was speaking, and others were giving her strict attention. She put her hand into her bag. I saw a puzzled expression come over her face and amusement got the better of me. "You may as well bring it right out, for I saw you put it in," I said. With that she drew forth the little Madeira square and held it up in astonishment. She had thought it was her husband's handkerchiefs which she had brought because she had a slight cold, but it was a White House napkin and—it was full of holes!

The other incident was really a series of mishaps. This occurred when we had established a temporary residence at Dupont Circle while the White House was being repaired. The occasion was a formal dinner in honor of a foreign guest. The company arrived, dinner was announced, and we proceeded to the dining room to the strains of music dispensed by a stringed orchestra from the Marine Band stationed in the hall room across the hall. The guests were seated with due ceremony, but one of the chairs proved unworthy and the cane seat gave way beneath the weight of a distinguished guest. A substitute was brought, but the gentleman preferred to remain uncomfortable rather than embarrass his hostess by attracting attention to his plight. The tie of another gentleman slipped its moorings but was unobtrusively retrieved and secured.

An aide, one of those faultlessly attired officers bedecked with gold braid and lace who may always be seen near the President when he appears at a formal function, had been having some dental work done and a piece of temporary material had been put in place in order that he might present his usual flawless appearance at dinner. This structure melted at the first spoonful of hot soup, and I feel sure his dinner partner thought he had been suddenly stricken with facial paralysis from the contortions made in an effort to cover the deficiency.

Not until dinner was over and the guests had departed did I learn that just as the food was to be served a neighbor had telephoned that our chimney was on fire. A man was stationed on the roof to keep a careful watch on that and there was no further difficulty. For a long time that particular dinner was referred to as "the dinner of horrors".

A STUMBLE— AND THEN DISEASE

A child at play stumbles and falls. Then follows a ten years' period of acute and intermittent ill-health, which no one connects with that fall, until a Chiropractor gets the case. The treatments which the Chiropractor gave the child corrected spinal nerve congestion produced by the fall ten years before. The child quickly recovered, thus proving that serious diseases do come from spinal nerve congestion.

The spine is the foundation of the body and must absorb the shock of every accident. The accident need not necessarily be a painful one to injure the spinal nerves. It is a matter of how the spine receives the shock that determines the consequences. And too, there is seldom any discomfort or pain in the spine when the congested spinal nerves are producing serious illness somewhere in the body.

In every case of unexplained illness, a spinal cause should be expected. A call at the office of a reliable Chiropractor will establish the truth as to the real cause of the illness, just as it did in the case which is mentioned below.

ALL FROM THE SPINE.

"Our daughter had a severe fall when four years old. Since then she had never been free from headaches, pain and weakness in her back and limbs. Five years ago she had an attack of appendicitis. Anemia then developed, and for two years she was infected with boils. An unusually severe attack of appendicitis came four months ago and the doctor said the only hope was an operation. Fearing this, we turned her over to a Chiropractor. She improved steadily, and has gained more than a pound a week under his care."—C. C. Hanvelt, Chiropractic Research Bureau, Statement No. 2106-G.

Our success is due to our policy of never accepting cases that we cannot benefit.

In addition to the training received at the world's most prominent Chiropractic universities, supplemented by fifteen years' actual practice and observation, we have originated and are using our own system of painless treatment which is a distinct advance over methods commonly in use.

Agents Arrest 5 Near Monticello

Federal agents working out of the Kingston office on Fair street arraigned on Friday afternoon five persons before U. S. Commissioner A. C. Connolly, arrested by them for violation of the internal revenue law in having an unregistered still and possession of alleged liquors of too much alcoholic content. The five were arrested at the Mayflower House near Monticello, in the town of Thompsonville, Sullivan county, on Thursday afternoon when about 400 gallons of the banned liquors, all in barrels and kegs, ready for shipment, were seized and brought to Kingston, and the five were placed in the Ulster county jail.

Those arrested were Isadore Yankelwitz, his wife Jennie, son Reuben, Irving Rohr and Adolph Abramovitz. All waived examination and were held to appear later in Federal court in New York city. Isadore gave bail in $3,500 to answer to a charge of possessing a still, Reuben gave $1,000 bail for transporting, Jennie gave $500 for possession, Irving Rohr gave $500 for possession and bail was fixed at $500 for Adolph Abramovitz for possession. The latter failed to furnish a bail bond and was placed in jail to await a hearing in U. S. Federal court later.

Costts Held for Police Court

Joseph Costts of 40 North street, who conducts a place of business at 31 Mill street, was arrested by Officer Boss of the Kingston police department following a raid on Costts's place by federal prohibition officers from the Kingston office on Friday. Costts is charged by Officer Boss with a violation of the penal law in allowing a boy under 16 years of age to remain in his place of business where liquors were sold without being accompanied by his parents or guardian. Costts will be arraigned in police court on the charge after his case is disposed of before U. S. Commissioner Arthur C. Connelly on the federal charge.

AT THE THEATRES

Today

Kingston: "Sunny Side Up." Enough cannot be said about this show. Janet Gaynor surely can sing, and so can Charles Farrell. The story is made for them. El Brendel furnishes the funny vein, and a comedy team, new to the screen, make hay while the sun shines. One scene, "Turn On the Heat", in which an Eskimo village becomes a desert oasis is extremely clever. Don't miss it.

Broadway: "A Song of Kentucky". Gambling, thoroughbred women and horses, traditions of the "blue grass" and the derby furnish plenty of action for Lois Moran and Joseph Wagstaff in this tale of the romantic south.

Orpheum: "Courtin' Wildcats", in which the ever smiling Hoot Gibson makes things gay for the evening.

Tomorrow.

Kingston: Same.

Broadway: "His First Command," William Boyd takes to riding a "hoss" and making fun of the army. If you like Boyd you'll like this.

Orpheum: Same.

Dies As Result of Knockout.

Detroit, Jan. 25 (AP).—Mickey Darmou, 20, Detroit lightweight boxer, died at 4 a. m. today in Providence Hospital following a knockout in the Olympia ring last night at the hands of Eddie Koppy, also of Detroit. Darmou, whose real name was Nicholas Darmand, did not regain consciousness after reaching the hospital. He was knocked out in the fifth round of a six round fight by a right to the jaw. The bout was one of the preliminaries to the Archie Bell-Tommy Paul fight.

DAIRY FACTS

COW REGISTERED BY PHOTOGRAPHS

Camera Useful in Studying Growth of Dairy Animals.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The importance of a camera on livestock farms is emphasized by the recent decision of two dairy breed associations to accept photographs in lieu of the color sketches of animals intended for registration. The breeds concerned are Ayrshire and Holstein-Friesian.

Dairy specialists in the United States Department of Agriculture anticipate increased interest in animal photography as a result of this decision, and call attention to Department Circular 371-C, which discusses the use of the camera in studying the growth and development of dairy animals. This circular gives many practical suggestions, and may be obtained by writing the Department of Agriculture at Washington.

Photographs have been used by research workers in the Bureau of Dairy Industry for a number of years, and it has been found that they furnish a prolific source of information which could hardly be secured by any other method of record keeping. These specialists are hopeful that the new ruling of the breed associations will stimulate a much wider use of the camera on dairy farms throughout the country.

Handle Milk Promptly During Winter Season

There is fully as much need for the prompt handling of milk during the midwinter as there is in midsummer. In warm weather the average milker will hasten to cool fresh milk simply for the reason that "keeping cool" is an objective at this time of the year that is always in the background of his thoughts. In winter, however, it is the nature of things to "cool off." Therefore, why hurry the cans to the cooling vat?

It is in midwinter, perhaps more than in midsummer, that milk is apt to possess an off-flavor unless care is exercised in handling it. The heavy feeding incident to midwinter—the liberal use of legume hays, concentrates, and so on, imparts flavors all their own to milk during these months which one may only hope to minimize by cooling it as promptly as possible.

In winter also the milking stable is tightly closed. The accumulation of manure in the gutters is naturally heavier due to the fact that cows spend more time in their stanchions than during the other seasons. So the chances of milk absorbing off-flavors are increased.

Production of Milk and Profits Vary Directly

"Milk production and profits vary almost directly according to the amount of grain fed," says G. W. Tallby, Jr., of the New York College of Agriculture. A group of cows which consumed $20 worth of grain produced an average of 5,201 pounds of milk and had a return over feed cost of $91.

Another group which was fed an average of $50 worth of grain per year averaged 7,771 pounds of milk and had a return over feed cost of $110. Third and fourth groups of cows producing averages of 10,254 and 11,037 pounds of milk were fed $85 and $99 worth of grain per cow per year. Net returns from these groups were $153 and $194 per cow.

In other words, the more grain the more milk, provided, of course, that the cows have the inherent ability to convert the feed into milk.

Picking Dairy Bull on Records of Ancestors

In selecting a dairy bull on the basis of the records of his ancestors consideration should be given to the conditions under which the records were made, says the United States Department of Agriculture. An investigation by the bureau of dairy industry at Beltsville, Md., showed that when cows were milked and fed three times a day instead of twice, confined in box stalls instead of in stanchions, fed enough to make them fat instead of keeping them in ordinary flesh, and bred to freshen at intervals of 15 months instead of 12, the production was increased 50 per cent.

A herd improvement association record of 400 pounds of butterfat, if made under ordinary farm conditions, the bureau says, is equal to an advanced registry or register of merit record of 600 pounds.

Dairy Herd Records

The first official dairy herd production records on the Hettinger (North Dakota) subsistence herd were recently received from the Holstein-Friesian advanced registry office. The average production for the 15 cows was 11,393 lbs. milk and 419.4 lbs. butterfat. Eight young cows in their first lactation were included, and their average production was 424 lbs. butterfat. The highest individual record was 16,534 lbs. milk and 523.5 lbs. butterfat.

Scholastic Innovation

When Dr. William R. Harper became president of Chicago university in 1891 he arranged for extension courses. He offered courses conducted by regular members of the faculty, who planned the lessons, graded the papers and assigned credit for the work done.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 25 (AP).—Wall street witnessed a firm Saturday market today despite rather heavy week-end profit-taking in some of the recent leaders. Increased activity and strength was noted in a number of low and medium priced oil and automobile accessory shares, probably due to a revival of pool operations, but the best gains were recorded in the high priced industrials and public utilities.

Dow Jones reported that operations of the U. S. Steel Corporation were now slightly in excess of 75 per cent of capacity, as against a low level of 50 per cent in the holiday period, but steel interests were reported as regarding as ridiculous the reports that the rate would be stepped up to 90 per cent within two weeks and to 100 per cent by March 1.

Bank clearings showed a further falling off in volume, as compared with a year ago, and the weekly mercantile reviews reported further irregularity in general business.

Hocking Valley, making one of its infrequent appearances on the tape, jumped 90 points above the previous sale to 450. Auburn Auto soared 13¾ points and American Tobacco issues, Westinghouse Electric, General Electric and Western Union sold 3 to 6½ points higher.

New York Central, Du Pont, Lima Locomotive, Colorado Fuel, Mexican Seaboard, Houston Oil, Vulcan Detinning and Bush Terminal all sold 2 or more points higher.

The closing was firm. Sales approximated 1,275,000 shares.

COTTEKILL

Cottekill, Jan. 25.—Mr. and Mrs. William Conner, Jr., newlyweds, have settled down and are keeping house, having rented Elmview Cottage of the W. J. Brodhead estate on the Cottekill road. The property is not a show place but is however one of the most unique and picturesque to be found in many miles' travel.

Mother and Five Children Die.

Atlanta, Mich., Jan. 25 (AP).—A mother and her five children were burned to death last night in a fire which destroyed their home here. The dead are Mrs. J. B. Kent and Lucille, 7, William, 8, Thomas, 10, Agnes, 13 and Oneata, 14. The fire is believed to have started from an overheated stove.

Seal Farm in Alaska

Uncle Sam's "fur farm" on the Pribilof Islands, west of the Alaskan mainland, netted a $1,000,000 crop of seals last year and brought the value of the present herd up to about $82,000,000. The 31,000 seals killed during the summer are valued at from $35 to $40 apiece for their tanned furs. The herd now numbers more than 872,000 as compared to 250,000 in 1911, the year when the wholesale slaughter was stopped. In the latter part of the Eighteenth century, it is said, the seals in that region totaled some 5,000,000.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By the Associated Press.)

New York.—Federal Judge Bondy has under consideration a motion to strike from the list of jurors the name of John Harriman, cousin of the late E. H. Harriman and nephew of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt. Examined as a talesman in a Jones law prosecution Harriman said he would not vote for conviction in a liquor case. Assistant Federal Attorney Watts moved that Harriman be adjudged unfitted for jury duty.

Dartmouth, N. H.—The boys at Dartmouth are inclined to think an inquiry to them should have gone to Harvard. The editor of the University of Kansas year book sent the Dartmouth Delta Kappa Epsilon two dozen pictures of Kansas coeds, asking that the year book's queen be chosen by an eastern college with the reputation of being rich and exclusive with a country club atmosphere. The Dartmouth boys obliged, however. They feel that as judges of beauty they are unsurpassed.

New York.—The New York American's society column says that hardly a day passes but what Mrs. Muriel Vanderbilt Church makes a telephone call to California, or vice versa, for romantic reasons.

Panama.—Dr. Innocencio Galindo, who has just begun his 81st year, expects to win an insurance bet. At 78 he paid $17,200 down for a policy under which he receives $1,000 every three months as long as he lives. If living on March 23, 1932, he will have all his money back. His grandmother lived to be 113; other relatives have averaged 97 years.

New York.—There's an heir to millions made in motors. Mr. and Mrs. John N. Willys are grandparents. The son of Virginia Willys de Aguirre is to be named John Willys De Aguirre.

Madrid.—Twixt love and duty Braulio Santos, police inspector, chose duty. Kneeling at the altar for his marriage he saw a pickpocket at work. Up he jumped in pursuit. After he caught the thief and recovered the lady's handbag, the wedding was resumed.

New York.—Father Knickerbocker's boss policeman knows how to shoot. Under the regulations cops who average 80 per cent or better on the headquarters practice shooting gallery are entitled to two days' vacation with pay. Commissioner Whalen has earned his.

Belgrade, Jugoslavia.—A cat can look at a king, and fog has no respect for the mighty. King Alexander and Queen Marie were marooned on the royal yacht in the Danube because of the mist. They were walking toward the city of Novisad when an automobile picked them up.

New York.—As the leading American vocalists Rose Pauselli, Louise Homer, John McCormack, Reinald Werrenrath and Geraldine Farrar have been selected by vote of the National Federation of Music Clubs. Their names will be inscribed on tablets in a concert hall along with names of leading composers, instrumentalists and conductors.

COLLEGE WOMEN'S CLUB SCHOLARSHIP BENEFIT.

Tickets are still on sale for the Scholarship Fund benefit to be held Monday, January 27, by the College Women's Club at the Kingston Theatre. The picture at that time will be "Sunny-side Up", with Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell. Those who have seen the bits from that picture which were shown during the past week and have heard Janet Gaynor sing, "Keep Your Sunny-side Up", know that they may look forward to a most enjoyable evening's entertainment. It is a picture which will appeal to both young and old, combining as it does, many forms of entertainment.

This benefit has been made possible through the kindness and cooperation of Mr. Reade and Mr. Gildersleeve, of the Kingston Theatre. A block of seats has been reserved at every performance Monday for those buying College Club tickets. These tickets, however, may be used at any performance of "Sunny-side Up" during the week following. The proceeds from the sale of the College Club tickets will go to the Scholarship Fund from which a hundred dollar scholarship is given annually to a high school graduate who desires to continue her education.

AMERICAN GIRL WINS STARDOM IN GERMANY

Berlin (AP).—An American girl to whom success was denied in Hollywood after more than a year of effort shows promise of becoming one of the leading screen stars in Germany. She is Miss Betty Amann, of New York.

Less than a year ago, Miss Amann came to Germany with her father to visit his native Wuerttemberg village. The thought of seeking a film career in this country never entered her mind. Her failure to rise above the rank and file of "extras" in Hollywood had cured her of her ambition to become a star.

However, there came a day when Betty met Joe May, directorial genius of the Ufa, Germany's leading film producing company. One look at Betty's coal black hair, her flashing eyes, her sylphlike stature and May offered the American girl a year's contract.

Her first picture, "Asphalt," scored a big hit. Critics of Germany and other countries on the continent hailed her as a new screen sensation. She had won fame almost overnight and that in a country where stars are rarely ever made in one production.

The director who "discovered" her lost no time in starring her a second time. The new film, "The Prisoner of Stamboul," was an even greater success than her first one. Now her third production, "The Blue Angel," is about to be released.

Miss Amann's chief task at present is to master German so that she may make a "talkie." Her director believes that she will speak the language well enough within six months. Since all "Ufa" talkies are made in three or four languages, he said, it is natural that Miss Amann will also be starred in an English version of her first tone film.

Arms and the Bishop

One does not usually associate the parade service with humor, though this conjunction occasionally happens. Here is a case from India: In the battalion orders of a smart infantry regiment there appeared the following notice: "The bishop of Lucknow will preach at the parade service on Sunday morning next. All men will carry 20 rounds of ball ammunition." Ever since the mutiny the troops in northern India have attended church with arms and ammunition. But it was unfortunate that the order to do this should follow so closely on the bishop's appearance in church.—London Morning Post.

Whereupon

The young men had been behaving in a disorderly manner at a Revivalist meeting, and the missioner asked them:

"Why did you come to this meeting?"

"To see miracles performed," answered one of them.

Whereupon they were summarily ejected. "We don't perform miracles," explained the missioner, "but—we cast out devils!"

Only Fair

When we know that we have a contagious disease it is only fair to accept quarantine as graciously as possible, no matter how inconvenient; to stay away from public gatherings where we might carry a disease to others; and to warn chance callers when we think we have one of the non-quarantine diseases.—Successful Farming.

Splinters

Mother was dressing a chicken, and Jane, age four, was close at hand with the usual number of questions. The feathers had been removed, but the pin feathers were numerous and much scraping was necessary.

"Oh, mother," exclaimed Jane, "how did the chicken get all those splinters in it?"

Pope Honors Dean O'Carroll

Newburgh Priest Made Private Chamberlain—Carries Title of Monsignor—In Newburgh for 30 Years.

Announcement was made Friday that when Cardinal Hayes returned from Rome on Tuesday, he brought with him Papal honors for five of the priests of his diocese, among them being the Very Rev. Henry O'Carroll, rector of St. Patrick's Church, Newburgh, who has been named a Private Chamberlain, with the title of Very Rev. Monsignor. Dean O'Carroll received official news of his appointment this morning. The others named were the Very Rev. Cornelius F. Crowley, to the rank of Domestic Prelate, and the Rev. William E. Cashin, the Rev. Stephen Krasula and the Rev. Robert F. Keegan of New York, with Dean O'Carroll to be Private Chamberlain with the rank of Monsignors.

In Papal Household.

The appointments are largely honorary and carry no additional powers, but the recipients are thereby made members of the Papal Household. They involve changes in vestments while officiating at services, the Monsignors wearing the purple, such as is worn by Bishops. The cassock worn ordinarily by the Monsignors differs from that of the ordinary clergy in that it is edged with purple.

Special Investiture.

The investiture is made with special services and these will be held in St. Patrick's Church, in the near future, the date for which has not yet been selected. Dean O'Carroll was summoned to New York today to receive his new honors. His appointment marks the first occasion when a resident pastor in Newburgh was so honored, though two former Newburghers were similarly honored in the past. They were Monsignor Mooney and Monsignor Evers, but the appointments came after they had concluded their service in Newburgh.

In Newburgh 30 Years.

Dean O'Carroll has been located in Newburgh for the past thirty years.

Wyoming City 100 Miles From R. R. Gets Phone

Pinedale, Wyo.—A hundred miles from a world of incomparable speed and uncertain destiny, Pinedale, alone in its nook of vastness, has refused to be longer without proper telephone facilities.

A hundred miles away steel tracks reach out to either coast. Mighty steel trains roll along the way. The whistles of locomotives announce their movement upon the plains. The sound dies away. Pinedale never hears it—a hundred miles away.

So blissfully detached this tiny incorporated town could not remain; for, the residents ask, how would they know if the President died?

Connections from the old telephone line had been poor, and long distance calls were all but impossible. The telephone company recently completed a new copper circuit line. Communication with all long distance points will be immediate and clear.

In another desperate effort to link it to the world officials of Pinedale have announced the completion of a highway from Pinedale to points both north and south.

How Much Steel Is Used

Iron Trades Review has been printing a series of articles on large uses of steel in small articles. Some of the figures are here shown: Bird cages, 300 tons annually; bolts and nuts, 750,000 tons; brushes in which the bristles are held between twisted wires, 3,000 tons; bill boards, 16,000 tons; book binders, 400 tons; electric bells, 3,000 tons; camp cots, 6,000 tons; eyeglass cases, 2,000 tons; license tags, 12,500 tons; hypodermic needles, 15 tons; paper clips, 1,200 tons; razor blades, 2,000 tons; telephones, 4,350 tons.

How Green Hay May Be Dried

Acting somewhat on the principle of a corn popper, a giant hay drier shreds and removes the moisture from hay in 40 seconds, during which the grass travels through 1,500 feet of pipe and is delivered in bags ready to be hauled to stores, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. Green hay is fed into the machine, cut into inch lengths and then blown through a series of insulated pipes where it is subjected to a temperature of 700 degrees.

How Army Tanks Are Tested

Traveling over rough ground at sixty-five miles an hour and going eighty miles over a smooth roadway, a highspeed tank, successor to the lumbering machines of the World war, recently was tried out by the United States army, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. Machine guns and anti-aircraft guns form part of the equipment of the speedy instrument of war.

How Dimples Are Formed

A dimple is a slight depression or dent in the surface of the human body caused by the adherence of the skin to the deeper tissues, most frequently on the cheek or chin.

How Bee Finds Its Way

The bee finds its way home by its sense of direction. When it leaves the hive it circles around and then flies off. Each hive has its own odor which helps the bee to identify its hive.

Briefly Told

The days come and go like muffled and veiled figures sent from a distant friendly party; but they say nothing, and if you do not use the gifts they bring, they carry them as silently away.

BISHOP MANNING OFFICIATES AT CORNER STONE LAYING.

West Park, Jan. 25.—The Rt. Rev. William Thomas Manning, D. D., Bishop of New York, will speak at Ascension Church, West Park, this afternoon at 3:30, and will lay the corner stone of the new Ascension Community House. The people of the community are looking forward with much interest to this visit of the Bishop and to the ceremony which marks another step toward the completion of the Community House. A reception will be held in the rectory following the service. All people are welcome.

Roman Orgies

The Roman Colosseum was begun by Vespasian and finished by Titus in 80 A. D. It was 612 feet long and 515 feet wide. The opening ceremonies in the huge amphitheater were conducted on a grand scale and lasted for 100 days, during which it is estimated that 5,000 wild beasts were slain in the sport.

Millions of Children in China Illiterate

Peiping, China.—Three million Chinese children in Hopei province alone are unable to read or write in their own or any other language, the department of education of the province reports.

The department urges institution of compulsory education for all children as soon as possible, but estimates that such a program would require $30,000,000 at the start, and as the province has been barely able to meet ordinary administrative expenses, it is not believed that a real beginning can be made in the near future.

As a temporary measure, the department suggests that compulsory education be started first in large cities, where the people may be able to afford it.
